FREE TRADE IN EUROPE IS TALK

List of Names Signed Gives Great Weight to Manifesto Issued in Favor of Removal of Obstructions

MYSTERY SURROUNDS DOCUMENT'S ORIGIN

Suggestion of Fiscal United States of Europe Regarded With Favor by British Free Trade Press

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Another attempt to find a cure for the financial and industrial difficulties of Europe was launched today in the form of a manifesto signed by an unusually long list of bankers and industrialists of international notice. Every country in Europe is represented among the signatories, as well as the United States through a half dozen well-known financiers.

The significance of the manifesto is felt to be more in the weight of its signatories than in its subject matter, which is simply an appeal for removal of the many barriers which in various ways are obstructing the restoration of European pre-war international trading and exchange.

A certain air of mystery surrounds the genesis of the document. No one seems to know just where it originated, although common belief is that it had its origin in Berlin.

Talk of Great Banking Trust The fact that the manifesto was issued to the London press through a well-known advertising agency is regarded as unusual, while further comment has been caused by talk of connecting it with the reported formation of a great banking trust which is said to have intended to use its resources to overcome obstacles thrown in the way of the resumption of European trade by the depreciated and varying exchange.

Whether the creation of such a trust will be one of the first effects of passing from words to deeds on the part of the great banker signatories has still to be seen, but all attempts to induce those bankers to talk on the subject thus far have failed.

Public opinion has also jumped to connect the manifesto with the recent discussions at Rome between English and German financiers. Some doubt is cast on this, however, because it is said that the document has been in preparation for at least six months.

Press Comment Publication of the manifesto in the British press has led for tomorrow, and consequently the press is not commenting on it as yet to any extent. The Westminster Gazette tomorrow will attempt to state the fact that it is just a century since the bankers and merchants of England petitioned Parliament in almost identical terms for the removal of restrictions after the Napoleonic wars. The paper recalls that it was twenty years before the repeal of the corn laws, which ushered in the period of prosperity during the Victorian era in England, and expresses the fear that it may take twenty years now before a lowering of the world's trade barriers in the shape of tariffs and other restrictions will be achieved.

The Liberal free trade News describes the manifesto as "the most impressive free trade declaration ever presented to the civilized world," and adds: "Signs are not wanting that the warnings it contains will fall on attentive ears."

The Daily Chronicle, also Liberal free trade, says:

"Since the war protection has been so rampant throughout Europe that Britain's free traders may well be continued on page 3."

HEAVIEST TAXPAYER COMES FROM INDIA

DELEGATE FROM EMPIRE WITHIN EMPIRE PAYS $1,500,000 ANNUAL ASSESSMENT

His Estates Are Inhabited by Nearly One Million Persons—Widow Adopted Him

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(By Associated Press)—India's delegation to the Imperial Conference, headed by Sir B. J. Bayly, Maharaja of Bikaner, is the premier nobleman of Bengal and largest individual taxpayer in the British Empire. His annual assessment averages about $1,500,000.

The Maharajah has extensive land possessions on the western side of the Ganges River. His wealth is fabulous. The estates are inhabited by nearly a million persons. They are admirably managed and well equipped with hospitals and schools.

Sir B. J. Bayly is head of the Kshatriya community in India, and bears the hereditary title of Maharajadhiraja, held by his family since the time of the Mogul Emperors. He is forty-five years old and succeeded to the throne as a six-year-old boy, through adoption by the widow of his predecessor.

The Maharajah is more than six feet tall, has the shoulders of a wrestling champion and possesses enormous physical strength. In 1904 when an attempt was made in Calcutta to assassinate Sir Andrew Fraser, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, the Maharajah simply picked up Sir Andrew bodily and put him in a place of safety. For his courage and coolness he was given the knighthood of the Star of India.

Last year he received the Grand Cross of the Indian Empire. Sir B. J. Bayly's two sons, also "hefty youths," have come to London with him to do some sightseeing. One of them acts as his father's private secretary.

Veterans of Many Thousand Battles, Says Morning Post, They Have Much to Face

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(Cable from George Hambleton, Staff Correspondent of Canadian Press)—Social invitations have been showered on the delegates to the Imperial Conference. There are enough invitations to luncheons, dinners and receptions to take the delegates' whole time if all were accepted. The Morning Post utters a word in season. The Dominion Premier, the Post says, must be strong, resolute men or they would not be where they are. "Veterans of many oratorical field battles," the paper whimsically adds, "survivors of thousands of handquets, they may well survey with some little sinking of heart the glittering array of invitations to luncheons, dinners and receptions, to ceremonious meetings at week-ends, opening bazars and awarding prizes. They will behold the glories of England which will demonstrate the natural desire of the English—or should we say British—to be jolly and hospitable to her guests."

The Post asks: "Would it not be kinder to the guests of the British nation to leave them to what secluded peace they may gather in the intervals of attendance on the conference?"

QUEBEC JUDGE GIVES ORIGINAL SENTENCE

Prisoners Must Go to Mass Every Morning for Six Months and Confess Regularly

QUEBEC, Oct. 19.—Two young men, charged with the theft of goods amounting to $200, appeared in police court here today and received their original sentence at the behest of the owner of the loot, a merchant who is of Jewish origin, and new a member of the Roman Catholic Church. "I do not want these boys to go to jail," he told the judge. "Simply request them to attend holy mass every morning for six months and have them go to confession once a month."

The judge acquiesced to the merchant's demand with the understanding that the accused request to the cure of their respective parishes every morning.

REVOLUTIONISTS NEAR SHANGHAI

Forces Moving From Chekiang Have Penetrated to Within Thirty Miles of City—Defence Is Weak

STORIES ARE TOLD OF TREACHERY ALL ROUND

Not Only Marshal Sun's Generals, But Also His Ally, Dictator of Manchuria, Under Suspicion

SHANGHAI, Oct. 19.—Revolutionary forces from Chekiang Province penetrated to within thirty miles of the city today.

The foreign concessions with their 8,000 white residents, are being policed for eventualities. The defending troops of Marshal Sun Chuan-fang are weak in numbers, reinforcements having failed to arrive from Nanking and Soochow in response to urgent appeals.

The position of the defenders is unfavorable, with a possibility of their being outflanked. Gliding down the Whangpoo River in boats, the Chekiang revolutionists slipped past Sun's troops guarding the railroad to Hangchow, whence they came, and almost succeeded in capturing Minchow before their presence was betrayed. Halted within three miles of that city, they menaced Shanghai's environs.

Chang's Good Faith Doubtful

Newspapers of Shanghai have uncovered an alleged plot of the Manchurian dictator, Marshal Chang Tso-lin, to overthrow Marshal Sun, overlord of five eastern provinces. These include Kiangsu in which Shanghai is located. His troops are reported to have invaded North Kiangsu and are said to be marching toward Shanghai. The newspapers assert that Chang plans to withdraw Kiangsu, Chekiang and Anhui provinces from Sun's domination. That done, he would set up the present governor of Shantung province, Chan Tung-chang, as governor for these provinces.

Generals of Sun Huan-pang, as the price of their treachery, said the papers, would be made governors of the provinces. One of the generals is Hsiao Kan, who has been charged with revolting against Sun.

EMPIRE SHOWS NO SIGNS OF DECLINE

SPEAKERS AT BRITISH PUBLIC SCHOOLS CLUB DINNER REFER TO DEAN INGE

The Lieutenant-Governor Advises Trip to Different Dominions as Care for Feudalism

With about one hundred and fifty members of the British Public Schools Club in attendance, the annual dinner of the organization held last evening in the Crystal Garden proved a most enjoyable reunion. Only two toasts were indulged in the programme of the evening, that to the King, and one to the Empire.

In connection with the latter toast, Mr. W. MacKay, in an appropriate manner, introduced the toast which was responded to by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, himself a qualified member of the club.

Mr. MacKay, in proposing the toast, referred to the fact that they had gathered about the tables men from all parts of the Homeland. The public school boys could be found everywhere in the world, and could recall experiences in all the diversified areas of the earth. It was gratifying to know that in the hour of testing none stood up like the boys of the public schools.

The speaker made reference to remarks that had been made by the late Dean Inge, in which he had expressed the idea that the sun of the Empire was setting.

An Old Story

"That is an old story," said Mr. MacKay. He showed that for generations past somewhat similar remarks had been made with reference to the Empire. It had been repeatedly announced that the best days of the Empire had been passed. The gloomy Dean was not alone in this prophetic utterance.

The sun, he reminded the gathering, never set on the British Empire. They were meeting in London and the sun is ever rising on the Empire. He would therefore feel like toasting the Empire of the ever-rising sun.

The speaker referred to the Imperial Conference, where men were gathered from all parts of the Empire. They were meeting in London with a common object on the part of all of them gathered as they were from all parts of the wide Empire "each for all and all for each."

The underlying principle which actuated them all was "how can we do the best for the Empire, not how can we do the best for the separate Dominions."

Imperial Unity

The Empire was bound together with bonds like air and yet strong as iron.

One of the great questions that would be dealt with would be that of intercommunication between the parts of the Empire. With the progress in the way of air navigation it

BOARD OF TRADE ADDRESSED BY MARITIME PREMIER AND MR. SCHWENGER

Note of Dominion-Wide Unity Struck—Committee Are Formed for Business of Meeting

ST. JOHN, N.B., Oct. 19.—"Remember, without the Maritime gateway, you could not have made Canada," declared Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, Premier of New Brunswick, in his welcoming address to the delegates attending the first annual meeting of the Canadian Board of Trade here today.

In thinking of the Dominion of Canada, he asked the delegates to remember the first four provinces which went in as partners in the organization of Confederation. He urged the people not to talk about the wrongs of the Maritimes, but to remember that these provinces were at the end of the long trail over which the trade of Canada should pass to reach the ocean ports of the country, "from which your ships should sail."

What we want is for the rest of Confederation to be the best thing for Canada and denied that there was any disunion or disunion here or any desire to get rid of Confederation. "What we want is for the rest of Confederation to be the best thing for Canada and denied that there was any disunion or disunion here or any desire to get rid of Confederation."

Repeating on behalf of the Canadian Board of Trade, C. P. W. Schwenger, of the Chamber of Commerce, Victoria, B.C., brought goodwill from the Pacific Coast.

Eleven committees were named at the first annual convention of the Canadian Board of Trade which opened its session here today, and the active deliberations of the Board will get under way in real earnest tomorrow. Today was occupied in the main by welcoming delegates and replies, in which the varied field of national commercial activities were discussed and the problems of the country touched on.

The committees formed will discuss taxation, trade and commerce, immigration and colonization, preservation of the identity of Canadian grain, Western cattle, Dominion-wide celebration of the diamond jubilee of Confederation, tourist permits, costs of transportation, industrial research and Maritime Province problems.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—California has been excluded from the itinerary of Queen Marie of Rumania as revised tonight, although she desired to visit that state.

The reason for passing up the Golden State was made known, but it is understood to have resulted from disagreement over rates between the railroads and those in charge of the trip.

A revised itinerary will be made public tomorrow and will include the Canadian cities of Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa, and thence back into the United States to Maryland, Washington and New York.

Victoria, B.C., also will be visited. The itinerary as first given out by the Rumanian legation here was unauthorized by the Queen and included among other California points, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Sacramento.

ONTARIO PREMIER ANNOUNCES POLICY

PROPOSES RELIEF FROM TAXATION AND GOVERNMENT LIQUOR CONTROL

Income Up to Three Thousand Dollars Per Annum to Be Exempt From Municipal Taxes

TORONTO, Oct. 19.—Gilbert Robertson, secretary of the Ontario Motor League, stated today that Ontario will save $10,700,000 through the proposed reduction in the cost of Ontario automobile licences and the new system of taxation.

The manifesto issued by the Government, following the dissolution of the Ontario Legislative last night, contained the following statement on promised reduction in taxation:

"The finances of the provinces are in such an improved condition that we propose to give the public some benefit in the shape of reduced taxation. This will take the shape of:

"1.—Relieving from taxation the amusements of the great mass of the people by exemption of all entertainments where not more than twenty-five cents admission is charged, and by otherwise relieving religious and charitable institutions on their entertainments."

"2.—To provide for exemption from municipal taxation on incomes up to $3,000.

"3.—To provide a reduction of five dollars in the licence fees of all passenger automobiles."

"The Government plan is to place these proposals before the next session of the Legislature, so that they may be enacted into law and brought into effect."

All new ministers were sworn in early last evening before His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Conkhuitt, who also signed the order of dissolution, which officially put an end to the sixteenth Ontario Legislature.

Liquor Policy

The main plank in the Government's liquor policy are: Doctors prescriptions wiped out. Commission to be appointed to handle Government sale of liquor by permit.

Rare will not come back. Areas of the province to be protected by local option.

Police liquor vendors to go to jail. Revenues from liquor sales to be used for reduction of taxation.

Machinery to be established to learn the wishes of both "dry" and "wet" areas regarding imposing or lifting of the ban on local liquor sales.

Premier Hertzog Is Prompt to Declare His View of Empire

Leader of Afrikaner Party Says British Community of Nations Will Have Support of All Races in South Africa So Long as It Is Commonwealth of Free, Independent Nations

Mr. Baldwin Reviews Empire Affairs; Mr. King Praises Value of Conference

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(Cable from George Hambleton, Staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press).—"In essentials, unity; in non-essentials, liberty; in all things, charity." In these words, traditionally attributed to St. Augustine, Premier Baldwin summed up the spirit and ideals with which the Governments of the Empire should face the problems of the future, when for the second time he extended a welcome to delegates to an Imperial Conference.

Gathered about the table, in the historic room where for centuries British cabinets have met since the days of Walpole, were representatives of all the Dominions and India. "They had come from every continent and crossed all the seven seas as representatives," to cite Premier Baldwin's words—"of the great and free nations, fellow workers in the service of the same crown and of the great traditions and high ideals for which it stands."

General agreement and the utmost cordiality marked the opening proceedings of the conference.

South Africa's Premier

General J. B. M. Hertzog, Premier of South Africa, with regard to whose attitude on Imperial relationship there had been some uneasiness in certain quarters, declared that South Africa was prepared to co-operate to the fullest extent in laying as solidly as possible the foundations of the British Commonwealth. He added: "The British community of nations has our hearty support, and will ever have our hearty support irrespective of parties or races, so long as it is of, and shows, the character of a commonwealth of free independent nations, each free and striving to attain what is best for itself, yet in such a manner and in such a spirit as will conduce as much as possible to the well-being of all."

Free Yet United

Premier Hertzog defined the guiding principle of Imperial relations in these words: "The principle of unrestrained freedom of action to each individual member of the commonwealth, in practice, co-operation with a view to co-operative action wherever possible."

The Premier of South Africa urged that it was of paramount importance that the foundations of the British Commonwealth should be such as would stand the test of time. He urged that the conference should inquire whether all the conditions were present to insure the permanency and goodwill of the Empire. Speaking merely for South Africa, Premier Hertzog added: "I think they are not."

Continuing, Premier Hertzog said: "South Africa is anxious to see that goodwill equally with every other member of the Commonwealth, but that goodwill can be assured for the future only if she can be sure of a real implicit faith in her full, free nationhood being established on an equal basis with every other member of the Commonwealth. That implicit faith she does not possess today, but she will possess it the moment her independent national status ceases to be a matter of dispute and she becomes internationally recognized."

Premier Hertzog hoped, therefore, that the question of status would receive due consideration by the conference.

Premier S. M. Bruce of Australia demurred somewhat. "For my part," he said, "I am certain that those constitutional difficulties which some people are trying to suggest will disappear entirely when around this table we come to discuss them."

Mr. Mackenzie King

Premier W. L. Mackenzie King, of Canada, said that the nature of the gathering made one realize how great an error it would be to overlook the differences in the situation and outlook of the nations represented. This diversity was sometimes left out of account in the habit which had been formed of speaking of all the countries of the Empire under the collective term "The Dominions," as if they were not different countries.

"On the other hand," Premier King continued, "our very presence here indicates that we share in common many great problems, many commanding opportunities and many proud memories. The moving ceremony we witnessed this morning commemorates the greatest of those common memories and not the least of the common standards of public life and private conduct. In countless ways, trade, markets and migration, one part needs the complement of the other."

"Through this unprecedented experiment in world organization which we call the Commonwealth, or community of British nations, one-fourth of the world's people are united in friendship and peace. It is inevitable, simply because this great experiment is without precedent or parallel, that sometimes we find difficulty in making foreign countries understand our position or wholly understand it ourselves. But perhaps in the next few weeks we may be able to explore methods for a clearer understanding of our political relationships, including problems of foreign policy in its several aspects, methods as well for closer co-operation in economic matters and fuller utilization of the challenging opportunities which the

TWO MURDER BANDITS BELIEVED IN TOILS

Prisoners Held by San Francisco Police Are Identified Positively by Victims

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—Dim, broken trails through the labyrinthine mazes of San Francisco's underworld have led to the capture of two youths believed by the police to be responsible for the orgy of murder and robbery on the nights of October 9 and 11, in which five men were killed and a dozen wounded.

Clarence (Buck) Kelly, his flight cut short by a police bullet through his body, is in the San Francisco hospital courting death in a self-expressed hope that he will escape the hangman's rope. His companion, Lawrence Weeks, younger but hardly less hardened, was taken while peacefully at work on a laborer's job in the Duboce municipal tunnel.

Both were apprehended last night within an hour of each other. Kelly, Roy O'Neill and Jim Fitzgerald, said by the police to be two close companions of Kelly, were taken to the hall of justice for questioning, but they were not implicated in any way. They were on an automobile ride with Kelly last Sunday after the first of the series of robberies and murders, the police say. A third suspect and a girl companion were being sought to-night along the same trails that led to the capture of Weeks and Kelly. Bootleg liquor, leading to the uncontrollable craving for wild adventure, is blamed on all sides for the crimes. Weeks freely admits some of the robberies of Sunday night, and admits he may have killed at least one man, Mario Fango, on Saturday night, October 9.

Identification of the pair was made at the hospital. Rex Hayden and C. W. Johnson, both of whom were wounded last Monday night at a gasoline service station where Jack Dunne, a night watchman, was killed, were the first of the gunmen's victims to view the pair.

"Those are the men," both said with positiveness.

OCCUPANCY PLAN IS BEING PREPARED

Is First Step Towards Zoning Movement for Victoria—Movements Are Explained

By J. H. DOUGHTY-DAIRES
It has been interesting to observe to what a great extent Victoria has developed along the right lines. That is to say, establishments and industries have shown a tendency to group themselves according to their kind in suitable localities to a greater degree than is usual in cities of the same size. But in recent years the unoccupied space in the several districts have become more restricted, with the result that business has been forced into unsuitable localities, to their own loss and the detriment of their surroundings. It is for the purpose of providing suitable sites for every class of building necessitated by growth that the matter of zoning has been taken up, with the preparation of the occupancy plan as a preliminary. That is what is meant by zoning—the reserving of every part of the city for its highest use. Think of what it means to a factory owner to be able to go to a city where, instead of having to listen to the rival claims of land owners in various parts of the city, he is able to go directly to an industrial zone that has been reserved for that purpose because of its fitness, its road, water and railway transportation facilities, its location, and other industrial requirements. Think also of what it means to the resident, especially the owner resident, to be assured that his investment is secure, and that the value of his property, the pleasantness of his surroundings—and also the immutability of his curtains—will not suffer through the intrusion of a factory or other unsuitable establishment in this residential area.

Study of Movement
It is only in modern times that the rapid growth in the number and size of cities has caused a close study of the fundamental problems more or less general to all cities. As one outcome of this study we see the zoning regulations that are in effect in so many cities of the North American continent and in Europe. Zoning regulations cover two forms of development: bulk and use. Bulk zoning regulates the height and area of buildings to prevent congestion, and use zoning governs the nature of the employment of city lands. As an example of what is being done in other cities, we can refer to Frankfurt-on-the-Main, which is divided into an inner and an outer city. The inner city is regulated by bulk zoning only, with the exception that certain nuisances are prohibited. The buildings may be as high as the width of the street, plus 6½ feet, to a maximum height of 65½ feet. On streets less than 29 feet in width a maximum height of 36 feet is permitted.

In the outer city, factories are practically prohibited in the residential zones which, however, and contrary to practice on this continent, may contain business buildings, subject to height and area restrictions. These become stricter until the villa zone is reached, in which seven-tenths of a lot must be left free and the erection of only two-story buildings allowed.

Los Angeles Experience

The earliest zoned city on this side was Los Angeles which commenced in 1908, and by 1915 had covered the whole city, dividing it into residential, industrial and residence excepted districts, the last named being districts within the residential zone in which all but the heavy and objectionable industries might be carried on.

Since then zoning and city planning have been adopted by several cities in Canada and the United States, including Toronto, Halifax, Vancouver, St. John, New Brunswick, New York, Milwaukee and Los Angeles, and several others, and always to the benefit of the city concerned.

Zoning regulations are not usually retroactive although in Los Angeles, certain industries are required to remove from districts to the use of which they do not conform. The generally accepted method of obtaining conformity of use in a district is to prevent any extension of a non-conforming use, or a change of any kind other than to a conforming use. Fortunately in the two-thirds of Victoria already covered, there are very few cases where this question will arise. This is due to the fact that a partial application of the zoning idea is not altogether new to Victoria. We already have by-laws regulating laundry and factory districts. These were enacted because the aldermen realized that they were necessary to preserve the comfort and well being of the community and as a measure for safeguarding the public health and safety, and not because the same thing had been done by other communities. The same reasons lie behind the question of zoning the whole city. We are not concerned with what other cities have done so much as why they have done it, and the answer is that the unparalleled growth of modern cities has necessitated zoning as a means of directing future development along orderly and sane lines.

Zoning is not a vague idea for converting Victoria into an industrial city. It is a scheme whereby industries are kept where they belong, land values are stabilized, the amenities are preserved and the appearance and attractions of the city retained and enhanced.

SEED INDUSTRY SHOWS PROGRESS

Mr. Cecil Tice, Provincial Agronomist, Addresses Kiwanis Club on Seed and Potato Production

The seed industry is showing healthy progress as a result of consistent encouragement by the Government for production of strains of high merit. Mr. Cecil Tice, agronomist of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, told members of the Victoria Kiwanis Club, at their weekly luncheon yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Tice reminded his hearers that success in the seed industry required many years of consistent work, marked by close study, much care and perseverance.

The speaker described the successful efforts of British Columbia farmers to produce high grade potatoes for seed purposes. He pointed out that the market being competitive, costs must be kept down and vigilance was essential to insure security against the presence of disease in seed qualifying for official certificates.

"The annual seed importations of Canada, aggregate over $1,900,000," Mr. Tice told the Kiwanians.

That British Columbia was ideally suited to seed production, and the home market offered encouragement to growers, were assertions made by Mr. Tice. In addition, he said, Northern grown seeds have been proven to be superior in every way to Southern seed, and in the United States a large market was waiting supply.

The Kiwanians thoroughly enjoyed Mr. Tice's instructive address, and the

CITY MANAGER ISSUE

Whatever the moral claims of the City Council to put a by-law to the people on the subject of the appointment of a City Manager it would seem to stand to reason that the electorate in this municipality should first know fully what they are voting on in such an event. We have never been able to regard this proposal as more than a half-baked scheme. At a time when authority, as it were, has been secured to increase the indemnities of aldermen it is proposed on behalf of certain citizens that a City Manager, an expert in civic affairs and a man brought in from the outside, should be appointed at a salary which would probably be at the least $6,000 per annum. The present municipal government has made claims again and again to having followed the most economic policy that can be devised in civic administration on the basis of the obligations that exist. We believe it has done well, indeed, the experience of the past few years is in itself a conclusive argument against the introduction of a new authority.

It may be said in favor of the City Council that as a body it does not view a City Manager as a panacea for any of our municipal ills. There are members of the Council who support the plan. It does not appeal to Mayor Pendergast. We cannot believe that it appeals to the ratepayers as a whole for they will see in it, and with some justification, a desire to create a civic position of emolument, the results of which in civic administration will necessarily be experimental and precarious. We have a City Comptroller now who is filling the duties of that office in a satisfactory way. His post would be an anomaly if a City Manager were appointed. What is desirable is to prevent, as far as possible, the multiplication of offices in any Government. In the long run they only mean added expense, and, therefore, increased taxation. That is the experience with both Federal and Provincial Governments; in fact it is the army of office holders which constitutes a grave drag on our development.

We know of no powers that could be exercised by a City Manager that are not being exercised by the Mayor and Aldermen today. A governing body such as that which prevails in a municipality must by its composition and the powers under which it operates be both legislative and executive. A separation of these powers is a negation of responsibility. In the long run the voters will hold those whom they elect to office responsible for administration. For that reason they do not wish their representatives to delegate such powers as they possess. In effect those voters have yet to be shown any conclusive reasons why a City Manager, a new and expensive cog in the municipal wheel, can do any better than civic government as at present decreed and ordained under the Municipal Act. Any expression in favor of a City Manager by the voters would be tantamount to saying that they have lost faith, not only in their elected representatives, but, as well, in the heads of departments at the City Hall.

ELECTION IN ONTARIO

The reasons which operated in the Federal election campaign to enable the Liberal Party of the Dominion to make certain gains in Ontario may or may not have their effect in the provincial election which is to be held on December 1. We are inclined to think that they were reasons of a character which have nothing to do with provincial politics. In any case the provincial Conservatives of Ontario are much better organized than the Federal Conservatives were and that is one reason for believing that Premier Ferguson can look forward to the result of the election with a good deal of confidence. He has given the province a strong administration. Ontario is essentially Conservative in its outlook and the present Government makes its appeal on a definite policy, namely that of State liquor control and local option, as well as taxation reductions that are somewhat sweeping.

The Prohibition question will be the issue of the campaign. In other words the opponents of the Government will no doubt take the stand that the present Ontario Temperance Act, which has failed to enforce temperance should be maintained, whereas the Conservatives believe that there should be a measure of State control over the liquor traffic such as obtains in other provinces, but with certain variations. What exactly is the plan which Premier Ferguson has in mind will develop in the course of the campaign. It may be said of his Government that, unlike that of other provinces, it has the courage of its convictions. It does not ask the people to vote on a referendum on the subject as apart from party politics. It asks them to support a Government which has a definite plan to offer and on the basis of that plan to sustain it in power. In other words it accepts the responsibility of government.

VISITING CRICKETERS

It is unfortunate that, owing to the time of the year they have arrived here, the Australian cricketers cannot play an exhibition match on the Pacific Coast. Such an exhibition would do good even though the game flourishes here perhaps to a greater extent than anywhere in Canada. The visitors of today, en route home after their season in Britain and after having lost the mythical "Ashes" in a memorable struggle, are the representative players of what has become the national game of Australia just as it is the national game of the Old Land. There is no international struggle, which receives greater publicity and arouses such widespread interest as the cricket Test Matches. It is a tribute to the popularity of a game requiring both science, skill and endurance, and a game, above all, the name of which has become synonymous with all that is best in sportsmanship.

There are many cricket enthusiasts in Victoria and they will all regret that the visit of the Australians here must necessarily be brief. Had they had the opportunity of playing here thousands would have gone to see an exhibition match. When our visitors realize the local interest that prevails it may be that on some future occasion, when they are on their way to the Motherland in quest of the "Ashes" again that they will stop off here long enough to find their cricket legs. We may not be able to promise them anything in the nature of a first class cricket field, but at least public interest in their display will be assured. With them the game's thing, and they could help it by playing here. If they will keep this in mind in the years to come Victoria may perhaps be able to look forward to seeing some of the finest exponents of one of the best of games in action here before long.

THE KAMLOOPS CONVENTION

Now that the date of the Provincial Conservative Convention has been decided upon the task confronting the party is to select the most representative body of delegates to assemble in Kamloops on November 23. The choice of an interior town for the meeting is a wise one. It will be free from the influences which tend to dominate such conventions when held in either Victoria or Vancouver. It will be the easiest point of access for the bulk of the delegates, and on that ground alone the choice is to be commended. One effort that should be made is to insure that all delegates chosen are able to attend and that the system of voting by proxy should be abolished altogether. It is an unsatisfactory system, capable of abuse, and it shows, moreover, or has shown in the past, a lack of enthusiasm for the cause, which is to be deplored.

The coming convention and its findings will exercise a dominant influence on the fortunes of Conservatism in British Columbia for some years. The question of leadership will be settled. A new and improved organization will spring from the deliberations. A platform will be defined on which the party can coalesce. These are the three main considerations, and the delegates should go forward to the convention prepared to seek all differences and enthusiastically willing to abide by the decisions that are reached by the majority. The convention, because of the circumstances, will attract wide-spread attention. It can be used to assure the success of the Conservative Party in the next Provincial Election.

SUPERFLUITIES

It is a happy inspiration which the Rotary Club has had in organizing a Superfluties Sale for the purpose of raising funds for the Solarium. It is happy because it affords everyone an opportunity of helping, as well as giving, everyone a chance of making a purchase. Already the collection of articles speaks volumes for public interest and we are certain that this will be further exemplified by the attendance at the sale. In the energy and enthusiasm which it has brought to bear on this project for helping the Solarium the Rotary Club deserves the commendation and the hearty support of the citizens. George Colman, Jr., once wrote that "a rich man's superfluties are often a poor man's redemption." The Rotary Club paraphrases that saying in its action, for what can be given without hurting anyone can afford a healing influence for the crippled children.

Commenting on a fashion of the age, The London Daily Express says: "The increase in fruit-eating is an excellent thing. The more fruit a nation eats the less medicine it needs. We are careful not to say the less medicine it takes, because statistics show an increase."

Loiterer Had Dagger For Japanese Premier

TOKIO, Oct. 19.—A youthful loiterer, whom the police arrested last night, was found to be carrying a dagger and also a letter addressed to Premier Wakatsuki, urging him to resign his office. The youth's statement was that he had been seeking an opportunity to hand the letter to the Premier personally and then stab him. "He showed the least sign of turning down his timely advice." The police are investigating. They think that possibly the boy's intentions were serious, but that he was probably merely seeking notoriety.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

Do you remember the time, the blithe and gay time, when Halloween used to be celebrated by ducking for apples? Halloween was then the greatest and the most joyous festival of the year a much merrier season even than Christmas, because there was always a certain solemnity attending the season of Christmas. Ghosts were supposed to walk on Halloween. Dickens banished all ghosts from Christmas festivities.

British Columbia is going to have a grand Halloween celebration this year, and all Canada and all America are going to join in the festivities. Halloween has been set apart as a day for apple eating. The formality of ducking for the apples that are to be eaten in celebration of the day is to be dispensed with, for it is no simple matter to insert the teeth in an apple that is floating in a tub of water, and the idea of Apple Day is to encourage the eating of apples.

In the land where the custom of ducking for apples on Halloween originated the fruit was not as plentiful as it is in British Columbia at the present time and was in other parts of America at a much earlier time. The apple crop in British Columbia this year has been very bountiful. If all residents of the province have not been eating an apple a day for many a day and thus keeping the doctor at bay, the consequences must be upon their heads, for apples are both plentiful and cheap.

In some form or other we have been eating apples since the first day of August, beginning with Yellow Transparents, followed in seasonal succession by Duchesses, Alexanders, Kings, and some others we do not know the names of, except McIntosh Reds, and we have found them all agreeable to the taste and favorable in their effects upon the health.

Consequently Apple Day will be of no significance whatever as far as we are concerned, nor so far as a number of the children and many of the birds in the neighborhood of Our Street are concerned. The children are healthy and strong, the birds are fat and chirpy. Very early in the season the children discovered the fruit and found it good. The birds began their offensive much later in the year, but when they launched their attack they prosecuted it with vigor. And when they came around for breakfast one morning and found nothing that appealed to their pampered appetites but blackberries they made a terrible fuss about it. One old cat, a mighty hunter and diligent provider, has grown lean and hungry-looking since the apples were picked and stored away. A bird a day, sometimes two or three birds a day, was the toll she took of the marauding tribes. The S. P. C. A. need not be shocked at the apparent callousness of this statement. The law of natural balance is simply being maintained.

The authorities responsible for the idea of an apple festival have published recipes for the preparation of a number of appetizing articles of diet that may be made from apples. The apple a day that keeps the doctor away of course is not cooked at all. If it is a good apple its qualities cannot be improved by any artificial processes artificially applied by the most skillful of cooks. Still, the idea behind the Apple Day, which we hope will be extended over many days, is to provide a market for the abundant apple crop of the continent, and that can never be accomplished if the hundreds of millions of apple eaters in the world are encouraged to eat none but raw apples.

The apple pie—the deep and juicy apple pie—not the flat and heavy apple pie indigenous to some parts of the continent—is a dish fit to set before kings. But remember the old rhyme, "apple pie without cheese is like a kiss without a squeeze," and eat your apple pie as it should be eaten. Baked apples, apple dumplings and apple sauce follow the apple pie in natural order of precedence. They are all excellent, we believe, in their physical effects.

Canada produces the best wheat grown in the world and is the largest wheat-exporting country in the world. Wheat exports more than the United States, and the production of paper and pulp in Canada is increasing at a tremendous rate, because the demand for such products is rapidly increasing. Canada grows the finest-flavored and the most beautiful colored apples in the world. Markets for Canadian wheat at remunerative prices are assured as a result of intelligent co-operative action by the Canadian wheat-growers. If the fruit-growers of Canada were in a similar position to the wheat-growers of the Prairies in respect of markets, the prosperity of Canada would be permanently assured and the prospects of Canada practically unbounded. But, compared with wheat, fruit is a perishable article, and consequently the marketing of it is not such a simple matter. If every Canadian were to eat an apple a day for every day that an apple is procurable that might help to solve it, but it would not completely solve it. The Americans are going to hold an apple festival at the same time as the Canadians, but they will eat their own apples. A Canadian apple on the American market would be an object of interest and curiosity. The Briton does not care where his apple comes from so long as it is a good apple. If the people of Great Britain could be interested in the Canadian apple, they would soon find out that it is the best apple in the world, and that would help to solve the problem of the Canadian apple-grower.

"WELCOME"

(To the Australian Cricketers Visiting Victoria, B.C.)
Here's a welcome to our Comrades. And a smile from everyone. For those today whose emblem is Australia's rising sun:
Right heartily we greet them—
Those who hail from Overseas.
Where gleams the glorious Southern Cross
O'er our Antipodes.

Theirs is the land where patriots dwell:
Where Freedom's cause assured:
Land of the perfumed wattle, land
Of heroes who endured.
Their fair-flung open spaces meet
With—fair fields of flowers.
Where honest toil and pleasure mark
The glad and golden hours.

Yea, we welcome you dear Comrades,
With a smile for everyone
Of those today whose emblem is
Australia's rising sun:
With our gallant soldier kinmen
From "Down Under" we will sing—
God bless our flag, our country, and
Our Empire and our King!

The Flag Question

Sir,—An article appearing in your issue of October 13 relates the present difficulties in connection with a flag for South Africa and draws the moral that "it is better to drop the flag question altogether until such time, if ever, as there is national unanimity on the subject."

Yet, consider how different are the conditions in South Africa and in the Dominion of the Union. In the former it is the sentiment attached to rival flags which makes the trouble. In Canada we hold together in respect of the Union Jack and most of the opposition to a Dominion flag arises from the mistaken idea that its adoption displaces our Empire flag to the injury of a very loyal sentiment which is our highest respect and sympathy.

But that is not the purpose of a Dominion flag, nor the necessary result of its adoption. For example, in Australia you may see the Australian flag very generally flown in Adelaide and Sydney, which cities are practically all-British; but in Melbourne and other non-British towns, where other of the others, you will find the Union Jack especially popular, and—as human nature goes—it is probably displayed by way of compromise.

The purpose of a Dominion flag is to foster and promote the nationalization of the separated community; and to do this it does not displace the Empire symbol but supplements it in somewhat the same manner as a family name is supplemented by the first name of each member.

Several designs for a Canadian flag have been drawn up in the East and the more popular ones consist of a red field with a white square in the center containing a red maple leaf. It is obvious at once that she must have a home flag, and to many it seems obvious that the sooner the better. The Union Jack is dropped, but will not stay dropped, because whenever our great Canada goes a-visiting flag, a baggage train of red and white ensigns follows her address. Her friends don't like it, and the friends make a mock of it. A Dominion flag will be a proper visiting card.

But there is no chance of unanimity on any subject whatever; one has to abide by the rule of the majority. C. G. PALMER, R.M.D., Duncan, B.C., Oct. 16, 1926.

At Telegraph Creek

Sir,—Your reporter requested an interview last night and I regret he has not been able to see the bishop. The late Archbishop requested me to go up to Telegraph Creek for a year; he died soon after, in fact my ordination was the last official act he performed, and I remained as I felt it obligatory to do so. This third year I have been there, and the present administrator on his last visit requested me to remain permanently, which was apparently desired by the natives and people there. I agreed, provided I got home to straighten up my affairs there, and so I was arranged for me to go home this winter and at the same time to endeavor to assist in raising the Endowment Fund for the election of a new bishop whom hereafter has been maintained, together with the clergy of the Diocese of California, by the C.M.B. of England and other organizations, the former having a right in the election of the bishop.

Interest on Prepaid Taxes

Sir,—It is conceivable that the ratepayers and a bank could benefit by an arrangement something on these lines:
(1) A more reasonable rate of interest on overdrafts, having in mind the large volume of business passing between them, and the probable change from an overdraft interest-bearing current account, to a deposit current account. If Dr. Short's advice is followed, which is likely, unless a more equitable arrangement is arrived at.
(2) This is the crux of the whole matter, a blending of respective and mutual interest, i.e., how low a rate of interest on overdrafts can a bank afford to give and the business be still worth its while to keep; on the other hand, how high a rate of interest would the ratepayers be justified in paying for the privilege of paying taxes at any time during a year instead of monthly installments. It is conceivable that a bank rate could be low enough to be worth a heavy ratepayer's while to have the equivalent of his taxes in his business and a light ratepayer might consider a low bank rate a sufficient offset to the trouble involved in making monthly payments, though that in turn would be more than compensated for by the quickening of interest in civic affairs by their recurrence.

The Egoist

From The London Times

In the course of the psychological discussions at the Oxford meeting of the British Association much was inevitably said of such words as temperament, character, personality, and individuality. Attempts were made as attempts always are, to determine what factors, in what proportions and what conditions, go to the making of each. A similar endeavor underlies much of the correspondence in this column on the suggestion that crime should be treated as a disease. Time was when a simple psychology saw human nature as the bare battleground of a mob of conflicting forces and conduct as the automatic resultant of a more or less complicated system of pluses in different directions. On this theory a man was no more than the proverbial ass between his bundles of hay, moving meekly to this side or that, according to the quarter of the wind or the state and fragrance of the bundles. That quasi-mechanical interpretation has given way to one more scientific, if not much more pleasing. The new psychology sets great store by psychological discoveries which irresistibly recall the old theory of bodily "humors." It no longer characterizes a man by the supposed predominance in him of phlegm, blood, or bile, it does attach great importance to the secretions of deep-seated glands, the exploration of whose functions is one of the most interesting chapters in modern medical research. It is already poised to speak of a "hypothalamic" type of personality, and other glands will no doubt claim their share in psychological classification in due course.

In the midst of the undeniable interest and importance of all this the small voice of the unscientific man may be heard asking, plaintively but persistently, "Where do I come in?" It is not for him to argue with his scientific betters, nor can he deny the physical groundwork of his own life and conduct. If he were forced to believe that conduct can be determined by checking or stimulating this or the other centre of secretion, and that by administering a serum an extract doctor and chemist can alter not only his body, but what he has hitherto called his soul, the plain man could hardly do other than fold his hands and await passively what medicine and science can do for him. He would be living in a strangely altered world, in which he would be hard put to it to find any remnant of moral values.

It is not for him to dispute the logic and all scientific fact, he never ceases to be aware of a mysterious "I" which broods above the witches' cauldron of physiological and mental factors and claims to be a deciding voice in the nature of the brew. He lays stout claim, in his own way, to

"A most clear idea of consciousness of self, distinct from all its qualities. From all affections, passions, feelings, powers."

His obstinate adherence to that claim is his salvation. For as he may be to self-examine, gladly as he may on occasion pretend to shift his burden on to the shoulders of inheritance or environment, he never at bottom gets away from a deep, persistent feeling of a central deciding self. His inability to do so is not less of a fact than any other. It is indeed the mainspring whereby he moves and has his being, the fundamental hypothesis on which he gets himself out of bed in the morning, goes forth to his labor until the evening, and generally conducts the countless operations of his conscious life. When science has laid bare every nook and corner of body and mind, and has mapped out the functions of every organ and every cell, he will still be saying, as he points to something which neither eye nor microscope can see.

"This is myself, and I should thus have been Though gifted lower than the meanest soul."

Galileo, in the seventeenth century, was the first human being to see the mountains of the moon.

Persons Arrested for Petitioning to Prince

TOKIO, Oct. 19.—Several persons asserted to be agents of a political society, will be tried for less majestic in having plotted to present publicly a petition to the Prince Regent. Trafalgar Day in Victoria

Victoria and the Navy, it should be remembered, has associations that cannot be linked with any other name or names in history. Our readers will remember those who lived in the days of our late beloved Queen Victoria, how she was given a huge naval escort from the Palace at Osborne, in the Isle of Wight, where she had passed away, and every dignity that the Royal Navy was capable was paid her, the first Sovereign in British history to be so honored.

It would be most interesting at this time for some of the children in the city to look up the old newspaper files of January, 1901, and get a first-hand impression of the magnitude of the great warships and her escort across the Solent. Again, the Royal Navy did not by any means finish there, following the great funeral procession through the streets of London with full honors by both the services, the Army and Navy, and here it might be remarked that on onlooker on that occasion remembers many of the old men on the line of route were so overcome by emotion that their faces were practically bathed in tears. Yes, the records will show that upon the occasion, yet upon the signal the marshal to move forward they positively refused to obey, thereupon that hero of modern heroism, "Bob" (Lord Roberts) came forward to fill the breach with instant orders that the horses be detached from the drags and the men of the Royal Navy take their places. This was done with alacrity by the enthused sailors and the great Queen was duly drawn to the Mausoleum at Frogmore by her loved men of the senior service.

Reviewing these facts, which are surely vital facts for us to remember in our city here, it is the privilege and many think the duty, of all citizens of our beautiful city where the statue of Queen Victoria stands practically on the quay in front of the Parliament Buildings, to make every effort possible to celebrate the Navy's real day (Trafalgar) worthy of the name of its illustrious Royal namesake, Queen Victoria the Good.

Corns

removed—root and all

The business end of the corn is the root. When this root presses down on one of the sensitive nerves beneath the skin, the pain begins. The only way to end the pain is to get the corn out root and all with Radox. When you dip your foot into a bath containing Radox, the dead skin (of the corn) combines with the Radox Bath Salts to form a protein salt of the actual corn itself. This protein salt dissolves in the water like ordinary salt and so loosens the corn that it can be removed bodily. Radox Bath Salts do not affect the living skin; it is only the dead skin that dissolves—corn—which it dissolves. Your druggist stocks Radox Bath Salts.

EUROPE IS MOVING TOWARD NEW ENDS

Economic and Fiscal Realignment of Continents Is Foreseen in Manifesto Issued

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—The semi-official Wolff Bureau today publishes what is declared to be the text of an international manifesto signed by scores of leading European and United States financiers setting forth the economic plight of Europe and the necessity of pulling down the post-war tariffs and other trade barriers, if prosperity is to be restored. The manifesto is entitled "An Appeal for Removal of the Tariff Restrictions on Inter-European Trade." It declares that Europe can not recover until politicians of all lands understand clearly that "trade is not war but a process of exchange, and that in peace time our neighbors are not customers whose welfare is a pre-condition to our welfare."

The manifesto, intimates that public opinion shows signs of realizing the threatening dangers, and concludes: "We desire to express the firm conviction that the reintroduction of freedom of trade constitutes the best possibility for restoring trade and credit in the world."

The signers included Mr. Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England; Right Hon. Reginald McKenna; Mr. J. P. Morgan, United States financier; President Sahachi, of the German Reichsbank; and Mr. R. P. Duhemin, of France. There are numerous signers for Belgium, Italy, Denmark, Rumania and other European states.

The Rhyming Optimist

By Alina Michaels

I love to know what men have done long centuries ago, how they have met the changing days, clasped joy and conquered woe. And so I seek the story here on history's vital page, which shows how kings and knaves have lived from change-fest age to age. I find it all, the songs they sang, the mighty deeds they did, the thoughts they thought, the dreams they dreamed; no love, no hatred, hid. The yellowed page of history lays all these secrets bare; shows ancient men were kin to us in rapture and despair. Those savage tribes who, aeons back, by sail and oars dwelt, they, too, knew hope's most fair mirage, fear's keenest arrows felt. So from all these who long ago went down the ways I tread, learn to meet both joy and woe, to face both hope and dread.

The late Mr. Alexander Murdoch, aged fifty-six, a native of Glasgow, Scotland, and a veteran of the South African and Great War, was buried yesterday in the soldiers' plot in the Royal Oak Cemetery, the Rev. Dr. (Major) Campbell attending.

The funeral service, held at Sands Funeral Parlors, was attended by a large representation of friends and men of the ex-soldier organizations of the city. He was a prominent and valued member of the Veterans of France, being president for a number of terms and was an active member of executive of that association up to the time of his death, comrades of that association acting as pallbearers.

The late Mr. Murdoch served as a trooper in the Scottish Horse Yeomanry during the South African campaign, for which he held the King's and Queen's medals with several clasps. He was among the first to enlist in the late war, joining Lord Strathcona's Horse in 1914 and serving over three years overseas.

TRAFALGAR DAY PLANS ANNOUNCED

Famous Signal Will Be Hoisted at Parliament Buildings Square Tomorrow—Details Announced

The ceremony to commemorate Trafalgar Day tomorrow, which will take place at the Parliament Buildings Square, will be witnessed by over 1,000 school children, as the Navy League has made arrangements through Mr. Hall, the principal of George J. Bay School, to have these children brought to town by the B.C. Electric Railway Company.

The Navy League feels that this is a ceremony that should be impressed on the minds of the children, and by having the children present they are carrying out part of their educational campaign.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will arrive sharply at 11 a.m., after which the children will sing "O Canada," to be followed by the hoisting of Nelson's famous signal, "England Expects Every Man to Do His Duty," by the Royal Canadian Navy.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will give a short address, to be followed by a few words from His Worship the Mayor of Victoria. The Navy League Cadet Band will then play a special selection, "The Death of Nelson," during which the Lieutenant-Governor will inspect the guard of honor, and the president of the Navy League will place a wreath on the Cenotaph, to be followed by representatives of other organizations doing likewise if they so wish.

The school children will take up their positions on the roadway leading to the Parliament Buildings on the left of the flagstaff. The guard of honor will be on the immediate right of the flagstaff. Veterans and service clubs will take up their position immediately behind the Navy League Cadet Band. The chapters of the I.O.G.E. and the Women's Institute convention delegates will take up their position immediately behind the guard of honor.

Easy to Gain With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast with Vegetable Iron Quick Way to Build Up Weight

This new combination of yeast and vegetable iron, which renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangerous body poisons, increases energy and supplies the system with the vitamins that build up weight.

For years a yeast has been known as a rich vitamin food, but not until was perfected "Ironized yeast"—which comes in concentrated tablet form, was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron" when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized, becomes just twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast.

Ironized Yeast tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. If you are under weight, do not wait for good health, lacking in energy and force, "Ironized yeast" tablets will pick you right up, and if they fail, you get your money back.

Sold by druggists at $1 for a large 48-tablet package or sent direct from laboratory on receipt of price. Ironized Yeast Co., Port Erie, Ontario, Canada. (Adv.)

City's Action in Getting Mr. Pinneo Is Highly Lauded

THAT Mr. Roger D. Pinneo, harbor expert, will be of much use to the City of Victoria is the opinion of Mr. Howard Elliott, chairman of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, New York, expressed in a communication that was received yesterday at the City Hall here.

Mr. Elliott states in his letter that he was in Victoria for one day and a half last August, and in addition to driving about the city, motored 100 miles up the Island. "It is a most wonderful country, and Victoria and Vancouver Island certainly has a wonderful future ahead," he says.

"I believe that the Victoria authorities are very wise in getting Mr. Pinneo to conduct this survey of port development and industrial undertakings, and feel confident that it will be productive of great success," Mr. Elliott concludes.

STATES NOT TO SEND MINISTER TO OTTAWA

President Coolidge Sees No Need—Such Action Would Injure Act of Congress

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—President Coolidge can see no present reason for sending an American minister to Ottawa when Canada sends a resident minister to Washington. In any event, Mr. Coolidge is quite certain that such action would require an Act of Congress.

At present, it was said today, he feels that consular questions are being handled efficiently with Canada, and that any other questions that might arise could be dealt with through the present organization.

Reports that the United States would appoint a minister to Ottawa followed the announcement that Hon. Vincent Massey, of Toronto, would be sent to Washington as Canada's first resident minister.

NOOTKA MAY BE STEAMER'S NAME

EMPEROR OF PORT MCKENHOLL WILL RECEIVE NEW TITLE ON ARRIVAL HERE

Is Third of Fleet to Be Disposed of by James Playfair Interests During Recent Months

There is a strong probability that the new cargo steamer, Emperor of Port McKenhol, which has been acquired for the Pacific Coast freight service by the Canadian Pacific Railway, will receive a title in conformity with the place names of Vancouver Island.

The title "Nootka" has been suggested, in view of its historical associations, and the fact that one of the chief routes in which it will be utilized will be the West Coast.

There was a ship constructed on this coast during the wooden ship-building era called by the name Nootka, but it has since disappeared from the registry of shipping, so that confusion is not expected.

Captain J. W. Troup, manager of the Coast Service, expects that in future freight steamers in the B.C. Coast Steamship Service will receive distinct names based on B.C. place names, and the term "Princess" will be reserved for passenger vessels.

The Emperor of Port McKenhol and the Emperor of Montreal are being disposed of, making the third unit of the fleet which has been sold recently, as the Emperor of Havana was purchased by Japanese owners. She is now loading grain in Montreal for the United Kingdom. All three ships were bought within the last year by the James Playfair Interests, three others being taken over at the same time, viz., the Emperor of Halifax, sold subsequently to the Lakefield Steamship Company; the Emperor of St. John, and the Emperor of Fredericton. All six ships were originally constructed for the Canadian Government Merchant Marine.

CONSERVATIVES WILL SELECT OFFICERS

Annual Meeting Will Be Held Tomorrow Evening—Three Names Suggested for Presidency

The Liberal-Conservative Association of this city meets tomorrow evening in the rooms of the organization in the Campbell Building. The meeting is for the election of officers for the ensuing year.

Mr. Lindley Crease, K.C., who has filled the office of president for the past year so successfully, announces his intention of retiring from office. This will call for the selection of a new president. Mr. A. I. Kirkpatrick, who has been first vice-president, is also retiring from official position, his business requiring all his attention. He therefore will not allow his name to go up for the presidency.

Three names have been mentioned for the post of president for 1926-27. Mr. F. J. O'Reilly, Mr. R. B. Punnett and Mr. William Moresby. Whether all of these will allow their names to go to the meeting is uncertain.

There will be addresses during the evening by the local representatives of the party in the Legislature. Mr. R. H. Troup, M.P., the leader of the Opposition in the Legislature, will also be called upon to speak, as well as some other prominent politicians in the city.

All Liberal-Conservative residents in the Victoria City electoral district for the Province of British Columbia, which also includes Wardens (large size), Seven Oak Bay, are entitled to attend the gathering.

MOUAT—The death occurred on Monday evening at the Jubilee Hospital of Ann Grace Mouat. GOLD SEEKERS REPELLING AN ATTACK BY HOSTILE NATIVES

IN the early autumn of the year 1858, trouble developed between the natives and the miners. Small parties of white prospectors were killed and their goods stolen. The miners determined to retaliate in force, and an Indian war, brief but vicious, ensued. Loss of life amongst the whites was heavy, but the number of Indians who fell could never be ascertained.

Occasionally in business brief and vicious wars are propagated, when the clean fighter, standing solidly behind his reputation for service and the quality of his product, scores a decisive victory. 50,000 B. C. housewives stand back of Shelly's.

Price of Milk—The price of milk in Victoria has been raised to fifteen cents from thirteen cents a quart to those who had no supply of tickets at the old price. Pooley, leader of the Conservatives in the Legislature, and member for the district, will address the gathering. There will be a few other speeches delivered during the evening.

was not unlikely that in the very near future the Empire would be bound by way of the air.

Trade was another question that would come up. The speaker, acting the different opinions would be the product of interest in the whole of the Empire.

The speaker referred to the composite character of the British nation, a great producer of useful things. In the matter of workmen it had still the best in the world.

In concluding Mr. MacKay referred to the fact that the product of the country was plentiful. As long as it had such men as composed it the Empire would flourish. He called upon the members of the club to do their best to keep the Empire as it was.

Lieutenant-Governor Speaks
Hon. Robert Randolph Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor of the Province, congratulated the club upon its development in one year's time. The Empire, he said, owed much to the British public schools—more perhaps than to anything else in India, in Canada and in all parts of the Empire.

His Honor said he felt that there was little reason to be fearful with respect to the Empire. It represented one-quarter of the habitable globe. Why should they feel despondent with respect to an Empire like that? It was the Romans ever dreamed of. It was seven times greater than the Roman Empire in its palmy days.

With its 450 million people it was four times as populous as the United States. Everything was produced in the Empire that was needed for its people. If all the rest of the world went to the Empire for its necessities, Canada produced more wheat than the whole of the Empire used.

The British Empire produced one-half of the gold of the world. There was never an Empire like it before, and nothing like it was ever dreamed of.

If the gloomy dean would visit all parts of the Empire he would have a different idea with regard to it. The Empire possessed the keys to the trade of the world.

Signs of Life
Disturbances could always be expected, said His Honor. Such showed itself in families and in business firms. Such disturbances were a sign of progress. The only time when there was nothing of a controversial nature was when death intervened. Then controversies were a sign of life.

Before the war it was said that the old Empire was gone. Yet never had there been such an army as the 9,000,000 that entered the war on behalf of the Empire. These came from all parts of the Empire. It had cost the Empire (immense dollars), but had shown that the Empire was united.

The gathering was presided over by Mr. Percy Fletcher, president of the club. The arrangements for the dinner were carried out by an energetic committee composed of Capt. A. T. Laybourn, Col. Charles L. Plick and Mr. C. E. Downes. The decorations for the event were capably looked after by a committee composed of Messrs. Laybourn, Victor Price, Freeman and P. Fletcher.

A programme of musical selections was rendered during the evening, with Mr. E. H. Hughes as accompanist. Those who contributed to the programme were Messrs. Laybourn, Frank Patridge, H. R. Meadus, Kestman and Le May.

LIEUT. GOVERNOR MEETS ENGINEERS

JOINT LUNCHEON IS HELD TO HONOR DISTINGUISHED COLLEAGUES
Mr. Bruce Recalls Early Days of Profession—Future for Craft in British Columbia

A joint luncheon of the Victoria Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada and of local members of the Association of Professional Engineers of British Columbia was addressed by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor yesterday at Spencer's luncheon. Introduced to the gathering by the branch chairman, Mr. J. N. Anderson, A.M.E.I.C., His Honor, as he rose to speak, was received with enthusiastic applause.

It was a curious thing though, that engineers occupied a few public positions, or seats in the Legislature; it was noticeable that other professions were much more largely represented, and engineers should take steps to remedy this situation, His Honor said.

A new generation of engineers was now arising, who had received a thorough technical training at a university, almost as a matter of course, and advancement at the present time; while when he attended the Glasgow University, it was the only university in Scotland granting a B.Sc. degree in engineering.

The advantages of a technical training had been very evident in many ways, of which perhaps an outstanding example was the method of separation of metals developed at Trail, which had won a world-wide reputation as the last word in equipment and construction.

Among the large number of engineers present were noted: Mr. J. N. Anderson, Mr. P. Philip, Mr. J. P. Forde, Brig.-Gen. H. T. Hughes, Major J. C. McDonald, Major Hope, Eng. Lt.-Col. Clarke, G. B. Mitchell and Mr. J. E. Umbach.

VOTE IN NORWAY GOES AGAINST PROHIBITION

Premier Announces That He Will Introduce Measure Repealing Law Now in Force

OSLO, Norway, Oct. 19.—The people of Norway have voted against the continuation of prohibition of the sale of liquor as defined, and although as yet final returns are not available the estimated majority against prohibition is approximately 111,000.

Premier Lykke declared today his government would introduce a bill as soon as possible abolishing prohibition, and he added that he took it for granted the Storting would adopt the measure.

Up to a late hour tonight the vote (still incomplete) in the whole of Norway stood:

Against prohibition, 584,000; for prohibition, 333,000. Bergen voted, 26,000 against and 13,700 for.

A referendum on the prohibition of spirits was proposed in the speech from the throne read at the formal opening of the Storting last January. Prior to that there had been considerable agitation for the re-enactment of the law banning alcoholic beverages over twenty-one per cent alcohol.

About seven years ago a law was passed prohibiting all beverages containing above four per cent alcohol. This law was changed in 1923, raising the percentage of alcoholic strength to twenty-one.

Premier Lykke has contended in public utterances that enforcement of the prohibition law was impossible and that the measure led to contempt and disregard of all laws, to extensive smuggling and incitement to drink. Various organizations urged the abandonment of prohibition.

X-RAY TUBE GIVES UP STILL STRONGER RAY

Discoverer of Method of Extraction States That New Ray Will Disintegrate Bodies

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Announcement of the discovery of a method for taking from an X-ray tube another ray, the strongest known to scientists and called the Cathode ray, by Dr. W. D. Coolidge, Ph.D., of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, N.Y., was made here today by Dr. A. P. Tyler, of Omaha, Neb., at the meeting of the American College of Physical Therapy.

Research laboratories must now attempt to find means of controlling this new power, and make it subservient to medical science, Dr. Tyler said.

Dr. Tyler, a former president of the Radiological Society of America, explained that the discovery would place the most powerful rays in this ray: Cathode ray, first; Millikan ray, second; X-ray, third.

In making the announcement, Dr. Tyler said:

The Cathode ray is so powerful that turned on a mass for a fraction of a second, it causes the body to disintegrate, to fall apart, although it does not seem to char the body. Dr. Coolidge made the discovery in connection with his work on the X-ray tube. He had found the new ray within the tube and long had been engaged in an effort to extract it from the X-ray tube, which he had finally accomplished.

Cariboo Homesteader Is Committed for Trial

QUERRELL, Oct. 19.—Aaron Kost, forty-year-old Cariboo homesteader, through his counsel yesterday, told the story of his wanderings since he left his home in Transylvania, now a part of Rumania, in 1907, at his preliminary hearing on a charge of murdering Morice Orloff, his sixty-five-year-old neighbor, whose body was found near Kost's cabin last month after the latter had reported seeing him shot down from ambush. The Rumanian was committed for trial at Prince George, Alaska, commencing November 18.

INSTITUTES ASKED TO SUPPORT ENDOWMENT

Miss Sipprell Tells Island Conference of Value of University Course in Home Economics

Why should the women of British Columbia support the B.C. Parent-Teachers' plan for the endowment of a chair of home economics in the University of British Columbia? And why should a girl go to the university to learn to cook and sew? Why should she not learn these at home?

The answers to these questions, was indirectly supplied by Miss Sipprell, daughter of the Rev. W. J. Sipprell and Mrs. Sipprell, who has returned to Victoria after a course in home economics at Toronto University, and who yesterday afternoon addressed the annual conference of the Vancouver Island Women's Institutes in the University of British Columbia in order that it might understand the real nature of a college course in this subject before committing itself to the endowment scheme.

The Toronto University course in home economics is a five years' course from junior matriculation. The first year a basic year in sciences, the second year a course in physics, inorganic chemistry, botany, zoology, history of home life and the building up of the family, decoration and art, the history of furniture, etc., together with French and English, sanitation and zoology, study of home economics subjects; analysis of textiles, cottons, wools, laundry work, action of different soaps on various fabrics, home nursing, bandaging and first aid, care of the sick in the home; dressmaking.

Third Year

In the third year, French and ethics, sociology and child welfare; course in physiology and chemistry; the growth and manufacture of foods; cooking, experimental and practical; preparation of luncheons, serving of luncheons; dietetics; planning of dietary for normal individuals, together with the cost.

Fourth Year—English, economic history of Great Britain; chemistry and metabolism; analysis of foods; budgeting, child welfare; dietetics, as related to the needs of the sick and specific diseases; course in infant feeding, with study of the psychology of the child; writing of thesis on some features of diet and disease.

"Home is an economic institution, and after learning to plan her home efficiently and in the most beautiful and restful way, the girl taking this course learns how to keep the furnishings of her home beautiful and strong for the longest possible time by the use of the right methods of cleaning with care." It was stated. A practical knowledge of plumbing, household budgeting, laundering in the most scientific way without as well as with the most modern labor-saving devices, is learned.

Given Girl Profession

The value of such a course in providing a girl with a profession outside as well as in the home was shown, Miss Sipprell showing the variety of positions which became available—directing food services in clubs and cafeterias, institutional management, management of food shops, positions in hospitals as dietitians, interior decorating work, house planning, costume designing, direction of women's departments in large magazines, health education work, and other positions were also thrown open.

"What about British Columbia girls having no opportunity in such a course?" asked the speaker. Toronto and the East had realized how necessary it was to have this course, but here, in British Columbia, dietitians, when wanted, had to be procured from the States or from the East, and girls, instead of taking up home economics, went into the already overcrowded teaching profession.

Publicity

Mrs. H. P. Hodges spoke to the meeting on "Publicity," indicating the value to the Women's Institutes of well-directed advertising through the news columns of the press. In this connection she made some suggestions whereby the various individual institutes might further their own interests by improving the style of their press reports, condensing, eliminating uninteresting detail, writing their copy legibly and on one side of the paper only, and sending in their reports as soon as possible, while there was some news value in it.

Distinguished Belgian Organist Sustains Severe Injuries in Collision With Street Car at Scranton

Many people in Victoria will learn with sincere regret of the serious motor accident in which M. Charles Courboin, the distinguished Belgian organist, sustained severe injuries about the face and head. Courboin was in a car which collided with a street car, and in the smash-up the automobile was wrecked, while M. Courboin suffered cuts about the ear, forehead, and eye, and a fractured jaw. His right hand was also injured.

M. Courboin was to have appeared in Victoria in recital this Autumn. Whether his injuries are so serious that he will be unable to proceed with his season's programme is not known. He is very popular with Victoria audiences.

CARD EXPERT CAN DANCE CHARLESTON

Auction Bridge Demonstration Will Be Made at Hudson's Bay Co. Store Monday

Although seventy-two years of age, Mr. R. F. Foster, who is to visit Victoria on Monday to give a demonstration lecture on auction bridge, is as physically fit as an athlete and as mentally alert as in his youth. Mr. Foster even does the Charleston with a schoolboyish agility and is not at all averse to dancing as an indoor sport. As an aid to physical fitness Mr. Foster takes his early morning walks and exercises freely. With keen eyes, softened by a persuasive humor, kindly features and white hair, and a white, well-trimmed beard he carries his seventy-two years lightly.

He Analyzes Everything

But it is not the physical prowess that most impresses one in mentally sizing up Mr. Foster. It is the active and perceptive intellect that, with a thoroughly balanced brain power, analyzes and figures, so to speak, each proposal with which it concerns itself.

"I always have been unbelievably analytical, taking nothing for granted," Mr. Foster says. "Sixty-five years ago I was dismissed from a Sunday school class because by analyzing I found certain chronological items inconsistent. It is this faculty of doubting, and examining that led me to investigate whist and auction bridge."

Mr. Foster tells how years ago, he posted on the walls of his room the actual cards arranged in the order given in a card manual so he could analyze more easily the fundamentals of each.

He Deals Only in Facts

It is by this keen intellectual system Mr. Foster has reached the eminence he holds in the auction bridge world. While others advanced and wrangled over theories, Mr. Foster stated facts that came from an analytical certainty. The result in what is known as the Foster system of auction bridge, which stresses the principle of averages and which is attested by the numerous factors Mr. Foster has introduced into the game.

Mr. Foster has catalogued more than ten thousand different hands in his study of the game. His card philosophy is simple: "My bridge teaching is based on the principle that I have no theories. Rather I collect exhaustive data, analyze them and let the theory then emerge as it will."

Mr. Foster will lecture and demonstrate on Monday afternoon next in the Victoria Room, Hudson's Bay Company's store, commencing at 3 o'clock.

Reservations are being made in the order applications are received. Tickets may be obtained from the information bureau on the mezzanine floor.

Saving Home Important For Saving the Child

Rev. Thomas Menzies, Addresses Women's Institutes Conference, Emphasizing Necessity of Preserving Child's Natural Birthright

"One of the chief aims in our work is the reconstruction of the home from which the child comes. The family is the oldest organization in existence, and is the basic unit of society. It is the nursery of character. When the home is destroyed it should be the aim of social workers to reconstruct it and preserve it for the child, if this is humanly possible, for a home is the natural birthright of the child."

This was the central argument used by the Rev. Thomas Menzies, superintendent of neglected children, in the address which he gave yesterday afternoon before the annual conference of the Island District Women's Institutes. His subject, "The Neglected Child," touched on nearly every phase of a problem which in recent years has forced its way more and more on the attention of the Institutes. The hall was crowded when Mr. Menzies gave his address, and the subsequent well-attended questions, some of which related to specific cases of neglected children, testified to the sympathetic interest which the subject has in a general as well as an individual sense. The matter of the abnormal child having been touched upon by the speaker, Mrs. J. D. Gordon, in the discussion which followed the address, remarked that the mental hospital at Esquimalt made provision only for boys, not for girls, who needed the protection of such an institution even more than boys. Mr. Menzies expressed surprise, saying that he had not known this. "I am glad to have this information brought to my attention, and I shall certainly use it," he informed the meeting.

Fourfold Act
Mr. Menzies briefly reviewed the history of the Act Respecting Infants placed on the statute books of this Province in 1811, and which was of a fourfold nature, pertaining to the care and apprenticeship of minors, infant contracts, the protection of the child, and youthful offenders.

With the third part of this Act he dealt in particular, specifying some of the conditions under which a child must be found before it could be termed "neglected," and come within the jurisdiction of the Act. Among some of the conditions named were that of a child found begging in the streets; a child found sleeping out of doors; one found associated with a thief or drunkard; a destitute orphan or one who had been deserted by his lawful parents; one found guilty of petty crime; one whose home by reason of neglect was an unfit place for a child; a feeble-minded child, one suffering from deafness or blindness or other affliction which was likely to make it become a responsibility on the public. If found to have been neglected, the child might be ordered to a children's home, to a children's aid society, or to the superintendent of neglected children, as the Judge might see fit. But whatever the circumstances, the aim of those concerned with the interests of the child was the reconstruction and preservation of the home as being the best possible place for the child. The State or community should at all times come to the assistance of the unfortunate family. This would be in the majority of cases, not only best for the child, but, in the long run, the most economical thing for the State.

Injurious Effects
The injurious effects of taking the child from its home and placing it in an institution were referred to. "No attempt should be made to take children away from their homes and place them in institutions until every other resource has been tried to help the family and keep it intact for the children," he emphasized the speaker. The children, if taken from their homes must still be provided for by the State or community, and this money could be better expended by providing for them in their own homes. The principle that dependent children would be better taken care of in their own homes than in institutions was now recognized in all provinces of the Dominion. In British Columbia there was the mother's pension, providing for the support or partial support of a widow or mother otherwise deprived of the help of the breadwinner in the support of her children. Institutions were, of course, necessary, but would always continue to take the place of a true home. Here the children, whether good or bad, were all treated in the same manner, although a careful superintendent would find out all he could of the child's disposition, capabilities, educational attainments, etc. Institutions, where they must exist, should come as near as possible to the true home where love, care and education were provided.

Poster homes were recommended rather than institutions, but the selection of these were very important and in all cases there should be a contract signed by the foster parent and by the guardians of the child, guaranteeing the child the advantages of education and proper home training.

"It must always be borne in mind that even after careful selection sometimes the child becomes dissatisfied and the privilege of withdrawing from the foster home should be given," stated the speaker.

Country Preferred
The advantages of a foster home in the country to one in the city were indicated. In the country, particularly, if the home were a farm, the child would have the advantage of the almost continuous presence of the foster father, whereas in the city the foster father would in all likelihood be absent in connection with his profession or business. The farm also offered many more things to interest the child in a healthy way and give it a wholesome outlet for its natural energy, which in the city often took its vent in gangs, sometimes leading to petty chieving. In such an unfortunate circumstance the boy, not inherently a bad boy, became a bad boy just because he had not had a chance.

In selecting the foster home care must be taken that the foster parent was not just seeking cheap labor. The stigma of the industrial school was touched upon. Foster parents were difficult to get in this case. It was also unfair to a foster parent to ask him to receive into the home, without knowing its history, a child which had been in an industrial school.

Legal Adoption
The method of legal adoption was briefly rehearsed. The child, in such a case, took the name of the adopting parents, who became responsible for the child's support, the child having full rights of inheritance through the adopted parents. The subnormal child and its care were also considered.

NEWS OF THE SPORTING WORLD

Australian Cricketers Arriving Here Today

Will Be Guests of City at Luncheon at Crystal Garden—Mayor Will Deliver Address of Welcome—Officers of Cricket Association Will Meet Boat

The Australian cricket team, now on its way home from the Old Country, is due to arrive in the city today by the night boat from Vancouver. They will be met at the Canadian Pacific wharf by President Parsons and Secretary Howden of the Victoria and District Cricket Association at 7 o'clock, and at 10 o'clock they will be given a civic welcome and addressed by Mayor Penderay at the Empress Hotel, after which they will be taken by private car to the motor drives about the city and surrounding country, returning for luncheon at 12:30.

They will be guests at luncheon of the city at the Crystal Garden, and after luncheon their formal entertainment will come to an end, and they will make their own arrangements until going aboard the Aorangi, which is expected to leave late in the afternoon.

Yesterday in Vancouver VANCOUVER, Oct. 19.—Following a civic banquet tendered them last night, the Australian cricketers left for Victoria, where tomorrow they will board the Aorangi on the last leg of their homeward journey from England. The banquet was largely attended and Mayor L. D. Taylor presided. The speakers for the Australian team were H. L. Collins, captain, and Sidney Smith, manager. The former expressed the hope that Canada would be represented at the next Imperial cricket conference and that an Australian team would be able to visit this Dominion at a none too distant date.

Mr. Collins said that the cricketers of the province should get together and construct turf wickets, which, he contended, was necessary if Canada was to make any headway at the game.

The members of the team were luncheon guests at the Canadian club at noon. At the banquet tonight the various trophies won in the 1926 season of the British Columbia Mainland Cricket League were presented.

The commission received the challenge as information, and placed it on file, where it will be given consideration. TOP BERTH AT STAKE IN MIDWEEK SOCCER

Hudson's Bay Eleven Meet Tillamook in Important Fixture at Beacon Hill This Afternoon

With the leadership of the mid-week soccer league at stake, the Hudson's Bay and Tillamook Wednesday evening will meet today at Beacon Hill. The department store eleven have two wins to their credit in as many starts, while the clubmen have suffered one setback, and that from their opponents of today's game. Victory for the boys of the gold and green sweaters will place them four points in front of their rivals, but, should the clubmen come through with a win, they will have a lead of two points over the Bays.

Today's game should be very fast, as the teams are carrying a bunch of young players in the respective forward lines. The Hudson's Bays will rely on Addie, Fish, Robinson, Woodley and Hansen, all youngsters with a fair knowledge of the game. The clubmen will have Owsen, Brown, Eagle, Horde and Graham. Last week this bunch of youngsters ran through the Bakers' defence for three tallies; today they will be one step closer to the fans just how they will penetrate the Hudson's Bay defence.

Rennie & Taylor's and the Navy will meet at the Royal Athletic Park at the same time, with Hewison as referee. The Bakers have failed to hit their stride in the last couple of games, but today they will be out at full strength to take the measure of the sailor eleven.

Today's line-ups are announced as follows:
Hudson's Bay: Shrimpton; Armstrong and Gardiner; Haggen, McKay and Kerchick; Addie, Fish, Robinson, Woodley and Hansen.

The Tillamook team will be selected from the following: Matthews; Arncliffe and Dwyer; Wallis, Hocking and Rutledge; Owens, Brown, Eagle, Horde and Graham.

Rennie & Taylor: G. R. Stewart; Gilbert and Hay; Taylor, Tupman and D. Stewart; Caskie, McKinnon, Sewell, Speak and Davies.

The Soccer Outlook In Victoria Today

By C. V. HILTON

With the season well advanced, it is noted that in local affairs things are in a very flourishing condition. Games are being better contested than ever and the crowds are growing in numbers and they plainly show their appreciation of the improved conditions prevailing.

The recent visit of the English professional team has having beneficial results, play on the whole is faster and more skilful, and in particular on every team showing more brainwork in their plays, with the result that most of the goals scored so far have been well earned.

Another factor to be taken into consideration is the limiting of the senior competition to four clubs—this is so harmful to the game as to have scheduled games, and abandoned for lack of players. The four clubs are all evenly matched and any one of them will finish up, on the whole, as a very flourishing condition. Even last year's invincible Dockyarders cannot count for certain on winning any of the competitions, the youth are now being developed with them and neither Wests nor James Island will bow the knee to them. On Saturday the Wests are expected to have a hard game with the Dockyarders, while James Island, fired by last week's success, will meet Saanich with every confidence.

The individual star players of the city are well distributed among the four clubs; it is a matter of doubt as to whether Equilmont or Wests have the best forward line. Coulter, Watt and others, being well matched by a line which includes such clever players as Qualton, Connorton and Rennie. Saanich is developing into a really flashy goalie, while the Wests' defence is very stubborn with Bob Whyte the outstanding figure.

Saanich and James Island are two teams who rely on a peppery, rushing style of play; both teams, however, would be strengthened by the inclusion of one or two steady old hands at the game—men who can do a lot of work without much apparent effort. Both the Thistles and the Islanders are apt to lose their heads in excitement, and experience will teach them that it pays to think things out in a crisis and that a little deliberation will often pull a game out of the fire. James Island have a star goalie, and the inclusion of Preston and Howman has added a great deal to their strength. The Thistles have a level team with no player outshining the others; they have plenty of pace and weight and no end of confidence.

On High Plane
All teams are playing clean, hard games and it can be said that in many respects soccer is at the present time on a higher plane than it has been for many a year.

The true, level surface of the Athletic Park, adds considerably to the excellence of the game, and a very little labor would make the pitch at Beacon Hill safe and reliable.

Hockey Stars Making Way Towards the East

EDMONTON, Oct. 19.—Edmonton hockey stars who will play with the N.H.L. teams this winter are beginning to fit to the East. Johnny McKinnon, who played with the champion Winnipeg team in the Central League last year, left last night for Pittsburgh.

Eddie Shors, star defence man of last year's Edmonton Eskimos, leaves this week for Boston, where he will perform with Ross aggregation.

It was announced today that L. Goldworthy, of last year's Eskimos, has signed to play with the New York Rangers.

"D.M." Is Winner Of Bankers' Golf

WORLD has been received from San Francisco that Donald M. Grant, formerly of Victoria, led seventy-five competitors to win the golf tournament there of the American Institute of Banking and the Perring trophy. The tournament was played on the intricate public course and the winner's score was 74-4-79. F. Connan was runner-up with a score of 73-3-74.

CANADIAN RUGGERS ARE HARD AT WORK

Local Team Putting in Solid Licks to Get in Best Shape for Saturday's Game Here

On Saturday afternoon last, while Vancouver and Varsity Canadian Rugby teams were battling in a game which ended in a win for the former, Coach Cook was putting the locals through a stiff workout. Turning out in full war paint, the hunkies first of all put in half an hour's sacking practice, emphasizing being placed on the necessity for "going low." After giving the half backs catching practice, a thorough signal practice was indulged in, giving the line men practice in interference against the spares.

The first two games of the season have been valuable in giving experience to the players and have shown the weakness in the offensive and defensive tactics used until now. With this in mind, new plays have been developed using more interference, aiming to give a more open style of play than was used in the two previous games.

The local half backs have speed to burn and Coach Cook plans to make use of this fact on Saturday. The line will be equal to the task put before them and will crash through with colors flying.

Speaking to The Colonist yesterday, Mr. Smith said he never has, in all his teaching experience at the High School, seen so much good Rugby material turn out to the practices, and the way the boys responded to the turnout was very gratifying. To say the least, this will be the first real test the locals have had this season, and in many cases will be the first big game some of the players have participated in. On the other hand, their opponents have the advantage of having played together in a league game, which should help them to a certain extent.

Blue Nose Fails to Clinch Championship

HALIFAX, Oct. 19.—The Blue Nose again failed in today's race to clinch the championship of the Canadian fishing fleets by her inability to finish the race within the time limit of five hours stipulated by her captain, Angus Walters, as a condition of the contest.

The champion defeated the challenger, Hatterton, Captain Moyle Crozier, by twenty-two minutes, twelve seconds, on the thirty-seven-mile course, but was unable to finish in the time limit. At the meeting of the sailing committee in charge of the series, held tonight, it was unanimously decided to extend the time limit to six hours, and to resail today's race tomorrow.

Captain Angus Walters of the Blue Nose attended the meeting and in response to the committee's decision, he announced that he was leaving for Lunenburg in the morning.

Major League Players Defeat Californians

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 19.—The major league all-stars, captained by "Ike" Neusel, defeated the Los Angeles club, champions of the Pacific Coast League, 10-5, in an exhibition game played here today for the benefit of the Association of Ball Players of America.

Sportive Punches By the "Old Un"

This is the day when the cricketers from down under pay us a visit on their way home to the land of sunny Christmas.

Although Victoria is not to have the pleasure of trying to play cricket against them or even of seeing them play cricket this time, it will still be a pleasure to all Victoria cricketers who get the chance to make their acquaintance and wish them well.

Although of course among us there will be a number of Englishmen who, though wishing them well, were yet tickled to see the Old Countrymen who the one deciding and decisive Test Match which brought back "The Ashes" to England.

They are a great side and played great cricket, but, if the weather had not been quite so damp and unaccommodating over there this summer, the Test matches would have been more interesting and the Old Country's victory almost certainly more convincing.

It's too bad we can't see many play. The Old "Un" has very vivid and pleasant recollections of seeing Mr. MACARTNEY, small in stature but great in every way when it comes to cricket and sportsmanship, lifting "sixes" over the Jubilee Hospital ground fences with as little effort as the ordinary man pops up a catch to cover point.

And remembers taking a huge delight in watching from as near the screen as he could get while Mr. MAILEY twisted his "goggles" all round the British Columbian's legs and bats and everything else to knock the balls off just as though there had been no batsman in front.

Still, if we mustn't renew these old pleasures, the Old "Un" hopes that recollections of Victoria will be as pleasant to all these gentlemen as Victoria's recollections of them are.

He trusts that Victoria will look her best while they are here and the weather be dry—but not necessarily everything else.

And that some day cricket in British Columbia will have reached that standard of excellence when it will be possible for our teams to compete against these mighty men from down under with some chance of giving them an equal match.

Senior School Rugby League Opens Today

Victoria High School Will Be at Home to University School This Afternoon—Kick-Off at 3:30—B Teams Will Play on University Ground

The Victoria High School Rugby fifteen, holders of the Provincial High School championship, will make their first appearance of the season today, when they meet University School in the opening fixture of the Senior School Rugby League. The game, which will be refereed by Ross Johnson, will be played at the High School grounds with the kick-off set for 3:30 p.m.

It is expected that close to a thousand students from both schools will look on from the sidelines, so that the respective teams should not lack "moral support." At present, the playing field is in excellent shape, so that a good, fast, open game of Rugby is being looked for. As in past years, there will be four teams playing in this league, mainly Victoria High School, Oak Bay High School, Brentwood College and University School, and the way the teams are shaping up in their practices, points to some keenly contested games during the season. As is the custom the winner of this league takes possession of the Scott-Moncrieff Shield for the year. This it at present in the hands of the Brentwood boys, who won it last Winter, after a bitter fight with the local High School fifteen. However, the respective squads seem so evenly balanced this year, that it is going to be a hard proposition to pick the probable winner before the final game.

Official Opening

The same this afternoon will mark the official opening of the 1926 Rugby season as far as the High School is concerned, and the boys are going out with added determination to start the year right by coming through on the long and of the score at the expense of the Mount Talmie lads. Captain Larry Kennedy, genial skipper of the V.H.S. fifteen, admits the going will be hard, but figures his team will be equal to the task put before them and will crash through with colors flying.

Speaking to The Colonist yesterday, Mr. Smith said he never has, in all his teaching experience at the High School, seen so much good Rugby material turn out to the practices, and the way the boys responded to the turnout was very gratifying. To say the least, this will be the first real test the locals have had this season, and in many cases will be the first big game some of the players have participated in. On the other hand, their opponents have the advantage of having played together in a league game, which should help them to a certain extent.

Tod Morgan Wins From Johnny Dundee Who Breaks a Wrist

Tight Rope Artist Will Perform Here

The tight-rope performer who will delight the audience at the Crystal Garden on Thursday evening, as part of the Carnival programme, is now in Victoria. The performer is destined to be unnamed until the conclusion of the programme. The performer was taken to the Crystal Garden this morning and stated that there was no objection as to how high the rope should be placed, providing that should there be a slip the fall would be no more than a catastrophe. All spectators against a catastrophe are being taken, and the public can be assured that it will not be necessary to bring raincoats. This performer will be supported by many clowns and comedians, who will keep the public amused. The Water Burlesque will be followed by the Carnival Dance, the strains of music from two orchestras.

The spectacular part of the programme will be the living tableau of Lord Nelson.

GOLF AT COLWOOD

Club Championship Qualifying Round Set for October 31—Mixed Four-somes Next Sunday

The dates for the club championship of the Colwood Golf and Country Club have been changed and are now as follows: The qualifying round will be played on October 31 and will be thirty-six holes. The championship rounds of eighteen holes each will be played on November 7, third and semi-final rounds of eighteen holes on November 8, and finals of thirty-six holes on November 14.

The first thirty-two will qualify for the championship and the remainder will play in flights of sixteen. There will be a mixed foursomes competition on October 24.

Saturday's Soccer

First division soccer fixtures for Saturday are: Victoria, Wests vs. Esquimalt; at Beacon Hill; referees, Dave Swan, Saanich Thistles vs. James Island, Central Park; referee, P. C. Payne.

Junior and juvenile soccer fixtures are: Five Cs vs. Y.M.C.A. Beacon Hill (upper); Equilmont vs. Saanich Thistles, Victoria West Park; Willows Rangers vs. Saanich Thistles, Oak Bay Park; Saanich Thistles vs. James Island, Central Park. Three Cs a bye.

High Rugby Practice
There will be a practice of the High School Rugby team at the James Island Show Building this evening commencing at 7 o'clock. The following players are asked to turn out, as it is absolutely essential that the team get in first class shape before their next game: Killick, Curtis, R. Killick, Hunter, Charlton, E. Peden, Dunn, May, Shads, O'Neill, Smith, McConnell, Prissell, Horne, Lambart, Brooker and Hunnington. Any other players who might be interested in making the team are asked to be present.

A lady who sat half a famous bishop at dinner said to him in a most inquiring voice: "My aunt was prevented at the last moment sailing in the ship which founded last week. Would you not, bishop, call that a most providential interposition?" "Yes," he replied, "but I don't know your aunt!"

While these two teams are fighting it out on the High School grounds, the University School's second team will oppose Victoria High's second team at Mount Talmie. This should be another very interesting game and will be well worth watching. The team that will represent the Victoria High School in this game is as follows: Killick, Fraser, Muirhead, Denton, Herkner, Rush, Adam, Russell, Coulter, E. Clark, T. Clark, Gann, Vane, Warner, de Blaquiere, Thompson and Monk.

"Boss" Johnson will referee the senior game at the High School grounds, while Claude Campbell will "toot" the whistle for the game at Mount Talmie.

Will Have Long Stay at Port of Vancouver

EMPRESS OF CANADA

A rather unique experience for the port of Vancouver will be the sight of two Empress liners in this port at the same time. This will occur during the month of November, when the Empress of Canada and the Empress of Russia will be here together.

The Canada will arrive November 15, and owing to the new schedule, made necessary by the overhauling of the liners at Hong Kong, will remain in port seventeen days, sailing December 4. The Russia will reach Vancouver November 23, and sail again on Christmas Day, after a stay of twenty-six days in port.

The Empress of Russia is due here November 1, and will sail for the return voyage November 11. On arrival in the Orient she will proceed to Hong Kong for the thirty days' annual overhaul, thus necessitating the revised schedule.

Cable Board; Mr. E. Saffery, of the Pacific Cable Board, and S. J. Hooker, of Clarke, Ford & Taylor.

Messrs. Lemon and Spurrier will leave the ship when she arrives at Bamfield to complete and watch the work at the shore end.

Cable Cost $10,000,000

The cable carried by the Dominia is 3,625 nautical miles in length and was built at an estimated cost of $10,000,000. It weighs approximately 5,600 tons, and will be laid at an average speed of from eight to nine knots per hour.

Near the shore end heavy cable will be laid to protect it from the rocks, ships' anchors and movements of the sea. This cable is from three to four inches in diameter and heavily armored. From the shore it will taper into various sizes until the ship reaches deep waters, where it will be about one inch in diameter. About 3,500 miles of the inch cable will be laid by the Dominia.

Will Be Repaired Here

The steamer Famous, plying on the West Coast, will be taken to the Victoria Machinery Depot within the next two or three days to undergo repairs to her boilers.

MR. PINNEO WILL TOUR WEST COAST

Harbor Expert Leaves Tomorrow Night on Mission to Build Up Export Business for Victoria

For the purpose of making a tour of the West Coast fishery plants in connection with the plan for the creation of a cold storage export business here to cater to Island fishery products, including fish oil and fertilizers, Mr. Roger D. Pinneo, harbor expert, will leave on the Princess Maquinna tomorrow night for West Coast points.

While on his trip, Mr. Pinneo proposes calling at all places of business to see at first hand what can be done in Victoria to extend a hand to new endeavors which would lead to the building up of a steady export business.

Mr. Pinneo expects to return to Victoria on or about Friday, October 29.

To determine what volume of export lumber business can be expected to pass through the port of Victoria, Mr. Pinneo is sending out a questionnaire to every mill in Vancouver Island. Twenty-four questions are asked the lumbermen and wood manufacturers. Not only is Mr. Pinneo anxious to succeed in securing all Island lumbermen to do their business through Victoria, but he also hopes that Victoria itself will make an effort to build up new export markets for the lumbermen by the use of every facility in its power to co-operate with the producers to this end.

Mr. Pinneo will be the guest of the executive of the industrial group of the Chamber of Commerce at the regular luncheon today and will likely discuss the Island lumber questionnaire and the fishery questions.

Alcantara Is Magnificent Type Of Motor Liner

A successful launch took place on September 23 last, at the Belfast yard of Messrs. Harland and Wolff, Limited, of the new large motor-liner Alcantara, built to the order of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company.

Few vessels in recent years have aroused such interest as this ship, the latest addition to the R.M.S.P. Company's fleet, will attract scarcely less attention. The principal dimensions of the new vessel are: Length, 658 ft.; breadth, 78 ft.; depth, 45 ft.; and the gross tonnage will be over 22,000. She is fitted with eleven watertight bulkheads and a double bottom arranged for the carriage of fresh water and water ballast. The propelling machinery consists of two Harland-Burmeister and Wain eight-cylinder, four-cycle, double-acting diesel engines, developing a total of 10,000 h.p. forced induction is fitted throughout, and the cylinder jackets are cooled with water, oil being used for the pistons. The power is transmitted to two shafts, thus enabling the usual arrangement of twin screws to be adhered to. The compressors are situated in tandem at the forward end of each engine, being driven off the crank shaft. Manoeuvring air is stored in six steel reservoirs, which are charged by electrically driven compressors. The electrical installation of the vessel is very complete, power being supplied by four Diesel-driven generators with a combined capacity of 1,600 k.w., the deck and the engine-room auxiliaries all being electrically driven. The accommodation, which provides for 1,400 passengers and crew, has been furnished on a very luxurious scale. There are eight artistically decorated public rooms grouped together on the "K" and "P" decks, and, in addition to a lift, there is a wide staircase forward, extending through six decks to the dome over the "P" deck. The first-class dining saloon is a striking apartment on "A" deck, 94 ft. long and 74 ft. broad, with a central hall 68 ft. by 48 ft. and 17 ft. A swimming bath, 23 ft. by 12 ft. is situated on the Orlop deck—Engineering.

SEAMEN TRICKED INTO GUN-RUNNING

BEING CAPTIVE AFTER BEING SHANGHAIED AND THREATENED WITH DEATH

After They Were Forced to Transport Arms for the Nicaraguan Rebels

—Taken Home on Destroyer

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—A tale of having been shanghaied, held prisoner aboard their own ship and forced under penalty of death to transport arms and ammunition for Nicaraguan rebels, was told by thirteen seamen who arrived here aboard the Panama-Pacific Railway liner Cristobal.

The seamen said they sailed from Brooklyn last July 30, on the trawler Foam for San Diego and first suspected all was not right about the trip when at Puerto, Mexico, on August 13, they returned from shore leave to find groups of dark-skinned men loading packing cases in the Foam's hold.

They questioned the captain, according to second assistant engineer John Holland, and were persuaded to remain with the ship until it reached Bluefields, Nicaragua, where he promised them they would be paid off and given passage to New York, according to their story.

Gun-Running Activities

Rather than be stranded in Puerto, Mexico, they accepted. Shortly before sailing, they said, about twenty "passengers" came aboard, and these shortly after the ship had cleared the port, doffed their civilian clothing and appeared in the uniforms of Nicaraguan rebels.

Two were in the uniforms of generals, the seamen said, and swaggered about the deck brandishing pistols in the faces of the Foam's crew.

On the morning of August 15, the Foam anchored three miles off Progreso, Mexico, near the coast of Nicaragua, they said, and machine guns were mounted and the United States flag taken down.

Then began a series of activities in gun running. The ship was ordered run alongside the dock at Dragoon's Bluff, they said, while the town was being attacked by rebels from land and sea. Bullets whizzed over their heads, they asserted, and when the town finally was captured by the rebels their ship was ordered to Rio Janeiro and then to Bluefields Bluff, where heavy fighting was in progress. After a few hours' shelling, the Foam drew off and when ordered to return aground on the False Bluefields Rocks, said the seamen.

Vessel Abandoned

No longer used to the rebels, the seamen said the vessel was abandoned and the crew left, virtually without food, to shift for themselves. For three weeks, they asserted, they lived on coffee, a little rice and coconuts, which they picked up on the beach nearby.

Finally the United States destroyer Rochester was sighted and eight of the crew rowed in a lifeboat eight miles to where the ship was riding at anchor. The men told their story to the ship's commander and asked to be sent home.

They were sent on the destroyer Smith Thompson to Clon where the United States Consul supplied them with passages to New York. None of the thirteen seamen had received any pay for his services, they said.

Canada Has Important Place in World's Trade

Mr. C. P. W. Schwengers Addresses Canadian Delegates at Gathering in Saint John, N.B., on Fishing Opportunities of That Province

Speaking yesterday at the convention of the Canadian Board of Trade, which is meeting in the city of Saint John, N.B., Mr. C. P. W. Schwengers, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, who is representing the city at the gathering, delivered an address on the subject of "Foreign Trade."

Mr. Schwengers was asked specially to stress "the meeting and speak on this subject."

In his speech the local delegate dealt with the subject in hand in a very comprehensive way.

"Any consideration given to the subject of the foreign trade of Canada should be based upon a realization that we of today are not pioneers engaged in laying the foundation of a mighty arm of Empire which in the years to come, if we build wisely, will be one of the greatest guarantees of the continued dominance of our race in world affairs. We must therefore be prepared in so far as possible to carry the burden and extend our sacrifices as it may be necessary to do so, for the future success of our country. With this in mind, my remarks will be based, not so much upon the material reasons for the position in regard to foreign trade, but with a view to the magnificent structure which it is in our power to rear in this respect."

"The decision on which our policies will be based must take into consideration the infinite detail necessary to success. With the full knowledge that genius and greatness are a capacity for infinite pains, and that success is always involved with a mastery of detail, I submit that to place before you a mass of figures at the present moment would only be to bring out today, and which if accepted, must be the basis of the necessary detail to which I have referred in putting them into practical application."

"I propose to segregate my arguments into three sections: First, the vital necessity of developing our foreign trade; secondly, our foundation for assured progress; thirdly, the active major policies which should be put into execution."

Necessity of Foreign Trade

"To you here, well versed in trade, it is hardly necessary to submit arguments to justify foreign trade. It is a fact of life, and as such, many, in various walks of life, who believe that this country should be self-contained, providing all our necessities, and that our entire energies should be devoted to internal development. Such might look sane at any great elaboration of our activities for trade beyond our borders. This is not the reality of dealing with this phase, because unless it is justified, further argument is useless."

"Let us remember that all human undertakings and accomplishments are a matter of comparison. We can only gauge our achievements and base our judgment for the future upon the parallel which we can draw. It is desirable that in doing so we should select those countries who are our kith and kin, and who have the same standards of life and ambitions as ourselves. Therefore I feel I am right in selecting for my arguments, the Mother country and the United States. The latter is our closest ally."

"It has been claimed that the United States was not an exporting nation, and was completely self-contained within herself. I would point out that her great railways and her industrial fabric were financed and built up to a great extent by British capital, and the best part of the nineteenth century."

Matter of Trade

"Such being the case, why was it that Britain did not economically own the United States? The answer is because the latter paid for this investment with her great natural products of wheat, corn, cotton, timber and so forth. It was the vast export business which that country was able to conduct to the highly industrialized nations of Europe in resources which were not exhausting, which resulted in placing her in the paramount industrial and agricultural position which she today enjoys."

"With Great Britain the reverse is the case. Not in a position either to feed or clothe herself, she can only provide her people with the necessities of life by reason of her export of manufactured goods. This foreign trade is vital to her very existence."

"It is equally vital to Canada, not from the same standpoint, but rather for the reason that the products of our fields and forests, our seas and our mines, must provide us with the wherewithal to procure that great exchange of material, and particularly to borrow the necessary capital to enable us to maintain our high standards of living and to continue to perfect our civilization and build up our country to the position to which we are surely and safely advancing with rapid strides. A complete affirmative answer to our justification for developing the necessary instruments to develop our foreign trade to an extent in conformity with our resources can be found in putting the question—'What would our standards of life and progress be if we eliminated the $1,300,000,000 we now annually receive from our exports which we cannot consume in our own market?'"

"Let us now turn to the second section of my argument, viz., that we have a sound foundation on which to proceed with confidence of success."

Wheat Demand Increases

"Canada with a population of only nine million people, is producing today some 400,000,000 bushels of wheat, being the second largest producer in the world. The vast Oriental hordes which have for time untold lived on rice, are now rapidly turning to the products of wheat as their staple food supply. It is within measurable distance that the world's consumption of wheat will increase to 5,000,000,000 bushels. The United States today is close to the point of being eliminated as an exporter of wheat, and will soon require her entire production for her own rapidly growing population. The European countries have reached their maximum supply. The Argentine wheat is softer than ours, and Russia—our nearest potential competitor in wheat—will not be a vital factor for many years to come."

"Now let us realize that there is enough agricultural land in the Dominion to supply the world's entire present consumption of wheat. I am not saying that all our agricultural surface should be devoted to the production of this one commodity, but I use it as an argument to show that the statement 'that Canada will some day be the granary of the world' is not an unreasonable assertion."

"Canada has 9,500,000 head of cattle, a large portion of which is today exported to the United Kingdom. On the other hand, the United States, with a population of 110,000,000 people, only has one head of cattle to every two of her population, and can only maintain this figure by reason of her vast production of corn. Our potential export markets, therefore, are vastly greater than our present resources in this respect, and I venture to say that just as necessity has at last forced the removal of the British embargo against Canadian cattle, so our southern neighbors, with this vast population, will some day willingly throw open the doors to draw all the great supplies which we have every opportunity to place ourselves in a position to furnish in this respect."

Timber Resources

"Our vast stores of pulpwood and timber, comprising nearly 500 billion feet of lumber and a quarter billion cords of pulpwood, can still be both exploited and retained to wave to the four winds of heaven when the resources of our southern neighbor are nearing the point of exhaustion. Already British Columbia is exporting nearly one hundred million dollars worth of finished timber products per year to the United States."

"I cite the foregoing as examples only. Time does not permit me to elaborate with the inclusion of our barley, oats, hay, fruits, and other farm products, our countless wealth in gold, silver, copper and so forth. Canada is just one vast storehouse of natural wealth available for world consumption and use."

"Let us also remember that whilst our own courage and foresight have furnished us with exceptional means for the development and transportation of these great resources for export, nature herself, by reason of our good fortune in being a northern people, has endowed us with great opportunity. Just as the hardest races have come from the North, so our No. 1 Northern wheat is the world's finest product, and Canada occupies almost a 'corner' on this commodity."

"Our timber is of finer and denser fibre than the more southerly products. Our fruits are firmer and finer in flavor the further north you go, and our fish are richer in our northern waters. This great asset of nature covering all our products of the soil and sea, places us in an enviable position towards the world's markets. On the product of our factories on finished goods we have basic advantages of the first magnitude."

Water Power

"Our undeveloped water powers are possibly the most available and the greatest in the civilized world. It being estimated that there is no less than thirty to forty million horse power lying dormant which could be turned to the use of our people, and our great natural waterways and rivers give us advantages in transportation right from the chief seats of population to the open seas which must be a factor of great importance in the eventual struggle for trade supremacy."

"I further submit that with all these advantages which are so apparent, and the necessity already dealt with in the first part of this address, that we may with confidence turn our backs on this groundwork and face the problem as to those major policies which we must adopt to insure the maximum advantages which will accrue from our own enterprise."

Policy of the Future

"Let me say that most important of all and paramount above every other consideration must be a fixed continuity of policy, that once determined should not be deviated from, regardless of disappointments and setbacks, being based on the long range point of view, with the object not of immediate, but of final achievement. The progress of the United States as an export nation of finished products was undoubtedly retarded for a long period by the spasmodic attitude of her people towards foreign trade."

"In times of depression in her home markets her manufacturers were intensively active in cultivating foreign fields, but when prosperity once more reigned at home and the slack was taken up, interest lagged and connections made were often weakened or broken."

"In order to successfully cater to foreign markets, it is a vital necessity that manufacturers should have a stable and reasonable profitable home market. In this respect tariff stability is of vital importance."

"I have always held to the view and submit for your consideration that the tariff should be a scientific instrument removed from the field of strife that has agitated it from the time of Confederation. Our tariff rates should be fixed with the advice and co-operation of men of high calibre and patriotic views, giving a reasonable protection to allow concerns who are economically located and efficiently operated to hold their home market at a reasonable profit in conjunction with the rebuilding and development of their business."

"Given this factor, it then becomes possible to develop an export trade at a minimum of price which reduces operating costs and curtails overhead percentages to a point where export trade could be commanded in world competition. This export trade also has the advantage of enabling factories to take up the slack and by a maximum of output through the medium of reduced costs, to reduce their home consumption price as well, so that there is a direct advantage to the consumer of Canada in the export of our finished products in addition to providing the necessary exchange to enable us to purchase foreign commodities which I referred to as necessary."

"Preferential trade agreements must be a potent factor in a complete and unified policy. Already great advantages are accruing through consummation of this policy in various directions. Our tariff should be so framed as to permit of a very great elaboration of this policy. It should be directed to a lowering of duty on those imports which it is essential to obtain from abroad, and first and foremost to enlarge the scope of our export trade to those markets which indicate the widest scope and the greatest permanency for our surplus products."

Empire Trade

"The chief cornerstone of our foreign trade policy is and will continue to be the Empire. This is based on the sentiment and strategy, but carries with it the further advantage of permanency based on mutual interest and goodwill. The argument has been set forth that by reason of our unfavorable balance of trade with the United States of some $100,000,000 per year, that country must reduce its tariffs to increase its trade with Canada. What shall we say, judged by the same token, of our commerce with Great Britain, with an annual trade balance in our favor of between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000?"

"We sell to Great Britain some four hundred million dollars worth of goods a year, and purchase from her only about a hundred and fifty million dollars. As our most probable customer, we must extend such consideration to her through the instrumentality of our tariffs as will encourage the basins to development of her consumption of Canadian goods and furnish an opportunity to her to secure markets in Canada in competition with other nations in conformity with the justification shown by our export figures. I submit this from a strictly commercial aspect, entirely apart from those major obligations which we have always recognized."

"A survey of potentially greater markets must always bring to the forefront of our attention that vast consuming country to the south of us, our American cousins, with their enormous purchasing power and the changing conditions which are the course of time, will compel them to lean more heavily upon the supply of our own products for their use and consumption. The Fordney Emergency Tariff and other measures have created great difficulties in the way of mutual trade development, and constitute a barrier to our business relationship which should not exist between peoples who have so much in common with each other."

More Reciprocal Trade

"I am of the opinion that a strong reaction is developing against the sentiments expressed in the tariff I refer to, and believe that the individual and political goodwill that exists between the British Empire and the United States people will, at an early date, find expression in an amelioration in the present tariff policy of our southern neighbor."

"We all realize that the condition has been aggravated by the individual interests of certain powerful 'blooms' in that country. The broader general principle which should cover our relationship will, however, in time prevail, and when this desirable consummation is attained, a new era will have dawned to the agricultural life of this Dominion, but particularly to the Maritime Provinces."

"I also submit a suggestion that the thought that our commercial organizations, in building up their export business, should do so through separate departments or organizations. Where the same staff deals both with export and home consumption business, the issues at stake are often bewildered."

"Foreign commerce, with its world competitive factors, its requirements peculiar to each country, the methods of doing business, which have to be adopted in accordance with the idiosyncrasies of each people, the question of exchange, of shipping, of correspondence, and the burden of selling one's commodities, are all factors it does in foreign trade the selling of the goodwill of a country, and of a firm's business ethics, is one that demands the highest skill and complete devotion of thought and ability by those who are entrusted with its care."

"If our foreign trade is to be developed along the lines I have in mind, Governmental co-operation and assistance must be furnished on a vasty more efficient scale than has hitherto been the case. It is imperative that we should have a staff with knowledge that rapid strides have already been made in this direction in recent years. The trade commissioner should be a man of his own, or through their attaches, be possessed of an infinite detailed knowledge of every major line of business, and be sufficiently well versed in detail to know the quality of our products, our facilities for producing them, the price feature, and the maximum business which our people are in a position to obtain."

"These staffs from every country in which they represent Canada should at regular intervals return home and make detailed surveys throughout the Dominion, consulting and keeping in touch with every board of trade and every manufacturer desirous of identifying his product with the representative in foreign lands. A complete survey should be made by them and the highest skill and complete devotion of thought and ability by those who are entrusted with its care."

Conservation Policy

"Turning from manufactured goods to our natural resources, I would say that internal efficiency must be one of the great major factors in securing and improving the advantages which we now have. I have referred to the quality of our wheat, and our statisticians have made remarkable strides."
